Finns Claim Capture of Strategic Isthmus City; Nazis Decree Total 'Destruction' of Leningrad But Russians Vow Town Shall Not Be Taken

Gasless Filling Stations Here Are Predicted

Cut To Be Felt Sharply Next Week, Director Asserts.

Many Atlanta service stations are going to be gasless for several days next week, Bill Sims, a director of the Georgia Association of Petroleum Retailers, predicted last night after learning that the Eastern Petroleum Marketing Board had recommended to Secretary Ickes that gas consumption in September be reduced 60 per cent over the consumption in July.

"I think a 60 per cent reduction at the present time is too drastic," Sims said. "If they will give us 90 days in which to educate the motoring public, we will have the gas consumption down 40 per cent without working any hardship on the public.

"The action by Mayor LeCraw Friday in signing the ordinance ordering all service stations closed on Sunday is a great patriotic move. That will help to save a vast amount of gas, and also will help to teach the public that the gas shortage is really a shortage, and will enable many of the service stations to have enough gas next week to supply all of their customers with some.

Rationing-out Process.

"At my service station I must begin immediately to ration out the gas to my customers, as I have nearly purchased all of my allotment for this month.

"Under the regulations as set up by Secretary Ickes, who is also federal fuel co-ordinator, the wholesaler must ration out the gas to the retailer, then it is up to the retailer to dole out the gas to the consumer."

Although Mayor LeCraw yesterday made it illegal for Atlanta service stations to operate on Sundays, Sunday sales of gas in DeKalb and Fulton county are still legal, but their Sunday sales will not react against the local operators, the mayor was told, because of the strict rationing of gas to the operators.

Seaboard Shortage.

The gas shortage in the Atlanta seaboard is caused by 50 tankers, used in supplying this territory, are hauling gas overseas to Great Britain. About 70 more tankers employed in coastal trade, soon will be engaged in overseas transportation, which will make the shortage along the Atlantic coast more acute.

Local petroleum officials pointed out that the shortage in Georgia will be relieved considerably when the pipe line from Port St. Joe, Fla., is opened. The line already is flowing as far north as Bainbridge, Ga., and is expected to be completed to its terminus in Chattanooga within 90 days.

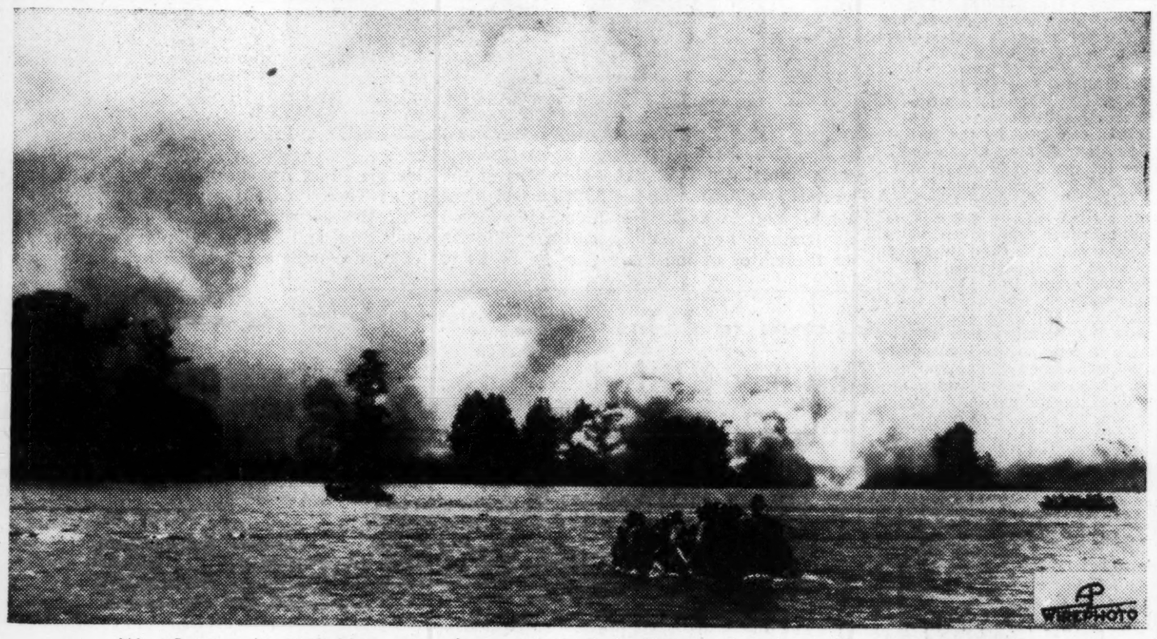

Forecaster Predicts Thundershowers Here

Partly overcast skies with local afternoon thundershowers was the weather forecast for Atlanta and vicinity today, according to the United States Weather Bureau office here.

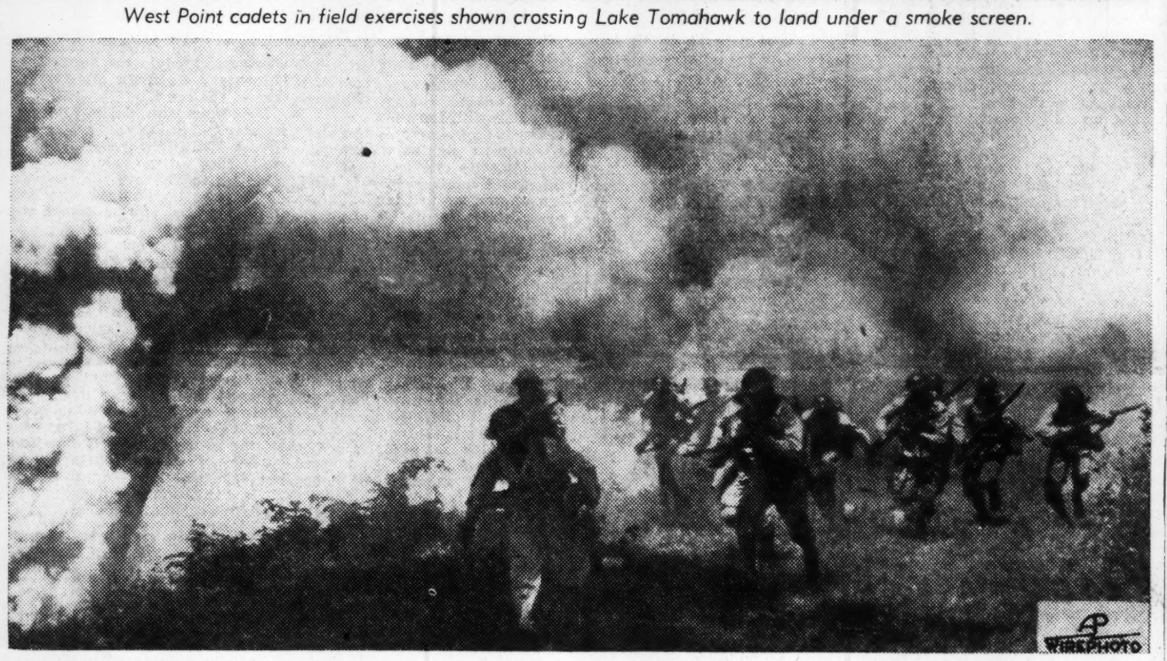

Temperature extremes will range from a low of 70 degrees to a high of 90 degrees compared with yesterday's readings of a low of 71 degrees and a high of 87 degrees.

PRACTICAL PRACTICE—The U. S. corps of cadets at West Point has deserted its books and classrooms for the time being and has taken to war training of this rough and tumble sort. Reserve Board Orders Credit Restrictions

24 Types of Consumer Items Listed in Installment Curtailment.

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 22.—The Federal Reserve Board today ordered restrictions, effective September 1, on installment credit on 24 types of consumer items, ranging from automobiles to trombones, home renovation loans, and small cash loans.

The regulations, placing in effect President Roosevelt's recent order directing restriction of consumer credit in order to conserve materials for defense and prevent inflation, generally followed tentative regulations made public last week by the board.

The final order, however, included several new items on which credit will be restricted. These include pianos and other musical instruments made principally of metal, attic ventilating fans, cooking stoves, sewing machines and furniture.

Starting September 1, it will, generally speaking, be illegal for any store or others engaged in the business of giving credit on the affected articles, to grant credit without a down payment or to permit the payment of the balance to extend over more than 18 months.

Restrictions Listed.

The restrictions follow:

One third minimum down payment and maximum of 18 months to pay balance—new and used automobiles, airplanes, power driven boats, outboard motors, and motorcycles.

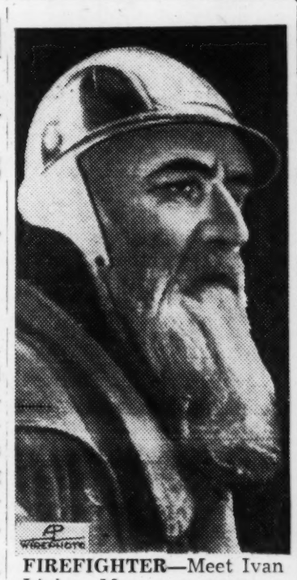

Twenty per cent minimum down payment and 18 months to pay balance — mechanical refrigerators of less than 12 cubic feet capacity, household washing machines, ironers, suction cleaners, cooking stoves and ranges, heating stoves, and space heaters, electric dishwashers, room-unit air conditioners, sewing machines, radios, phonographs and musical instruments composed principally of metal.

Fifteen per cent minimum down payment and 18 months to pay—Household furnaces and heating units for furnaces (including installations for oil, gas, or coal stokers), household water heaters, water pumps, plumbing, and sanitary fixtures, home air conditioning systems, and attic ventilating fans.

Ten per cent minimum down payment and 18 months to pay—New household furniture (including iceboxes, bed springs and mattresses but excluding floor coverings, wall coverings, draperies and bed coverings), pianos and household electric organs.

No down payment but maximum of 18 months to pay—materials and services (except items listed above) used in making re-

20,000 Trained In Georgia for Defense Tasks

State's Vocational Program Has Become Model for Nation.

Georgia's vocational education program, through which 20,000 persons are being trained for national defense occupations, has become one of the models of the nation, it was revealed yesterday in reports from the United States Office of Education.

Dr. M. D. Mobley, state director of vocational education, released reports showing Georgia has advanced to fifth place in total enrollment in vocational education and has the lowest per capita cost of any other states except two.

Total enrollment in all phases of this program is now 106,570, Dr. Mobley said. This includes agriculture, home economics, trades and industries and distributive education.

The four states having a larger enrollment are California with 206,526; New York, with 185,409; Texas with 182,741, and Pennsylvania with 107,621.

Georgia's per capita cost for vocational education, according to the federal report, was $14.26, while the average for the nation was $22.10. The only two states under Georgia are South Carolina and Arkansas. The average for 12 southern states was $17.18.

In the agricultural phase Georgia ranked second in the nation, led only by Texas. Georgia came third in vocational home economics. California was first and Texas second.

Because of the national defense emergency, Mobley said many vocational units in the state are conducting classes night and day to train needed workers.

British Believed About to Invade Oil-Rich Iran

Note Said Virtually Same as Unsatisfactory Oral Reply.

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

The Finns claimed last night to have captured Kiviniemi on the Karelian isthmus, thus pushing down to within less than 50 miles by rail from Leningrad, but it appeared that in the still more critical area south of the city there had been no material worsening of the Red position against complementary German offensives.

(The German radio, heard by the United Press listening post in New York, said that the German high command has decided to order the "complete destruction" of Leningrad.)

The early morning Soviet communique said merely "our troops continued to fight stubbornly with the enemy on the entire front" and reported no new withdrawals.

A crisis developed in Iran, which many believed Britain and Russia would invade to drive out German influences and to secure the great Asia Minor oil pool that fuels the Mediterranean air and sea fleet.

Iran Delivers Reply.

Iran delivered a formal reply to British-Russian demands for expulsion of German technicians and sources in Teheran said it was virtually the same as a previous verbal statement the British had considered unsatisfactory.

Russian reverses above the "cradle of the Socialist revolution"—and so the Bolsheviks described Leningrad in vowing bitterly before the memory of Nikolai Lenin that the invaders should never take it—were said by the Finnish command to have been tremendous.

It was asserted that five Red divisions had been destroyed or routed; that Kakisalmi, a port on the northwest shore of Lake Ladoga and itself about 75 miles northwest of Leningrad, also had been taken; that the important Red outpost of Viipuri (Viborg), 32 miles west of Kiviniemi, had been flanked; that 62 miles of the northeast shore of the Vuoski river, which runs southeastward down the isthmus, was in Finnish occupation.

Old Line Smashed.

In accomplishing all this, the Finnish command declared, a system of Russian defenses built upon Finland's own old Mannerheim line was smashed.

This line was wrested from the Finns in the Russo-Finnis war of 1939-40. It was by no means the Soviet's last hope in the north.

Dispatches from Helsinki acknowledged that on the lower isthmus the Finns had strong Soviet defenses to meet and the most formidable of such natural obstacles as swamps, lakes, streams, forested and twisted terrain.

It was below Leningrad where the showdown approached against

Mexico Orders Nazi Consuls To Withdraw

'Unfriendly' German Act Cited as Cause for New Break.

MEXICO CITY, Aug. 22.—(AP)—The foreign office tonight ordered 15 German consulates in Mexico closed by September 1 and simultaneously all Mexican consuls in German-occupied Europe to withdraw by the same date.

A bulletin from the foreign ministry said this action was taken as a result of the "act not friendly" of Germany in ordering Mexico to withdraw her consular representative from German-occupied Paris.

The order to close the German consulates—similar to action already taken by the United States and Cuba—followed the recent strain on Mexico's relations with Berlin which was caused by the German request that Mexico protest against Washington's anti-Axis blacklist.

The decision of the German government to close Mexico's Paris office, as well as honorary consulates in six other Nazi-controlled cities, by September 1, caused "profound surprise" here, the foreign office statement said. The honorary consulates are in Norway, Belgium, Holland and occupied France.

The Mexican government, therefore, has decided to go beyond the German instructions, the statement added, by closing Mexico's consulate in Hamburg and all hnoorary consulates still open in Germany.

The United States ordered all German and Italian consuls out of the United States in June, declaring their continued activity "inimical" to the national welfare. The two Axis countries retaliated immediately. In the last few days Cuba ordered German and Italian consuls to leave—and Germany and Italy again retaliated.

Germans To Hold Frenchmen Hostages for Official's Death

Prisoners To Be Shot If Further Outbreaks Occur; Vichy Falls in Line, Decreeing Death for Red Activity.

VICHY, Unoccupied France, Aug. 23.—(Saturday)—(AP)—All Frenchmen arrested by or for German authorities in France will be held as hostages for the assassination of a high German officer two days ago, it was decreed in a German military order effective today.

For any further acts, hostages will be shot in numbers according to the German view of the gravity of the offense, said the order issued by Lieutenant General Von Schaumburg.

It was not made clear whether the order applied to the 6,000 Jews arrested by the Germans in Paris yesterday, or to any of the 150,000 persons who have been deprived of their liberty since last May in all of France.

The assassination of Thursday, however, followed the recent demonstrations attributed to Communists to the mass arrests of Jews, Communists and De Gaulle "Free French" sympathizers in workers' sections of Paris.

Identity of the victim was not mentioned in the order, but it was reported in Vichy that he was a colonel of the German Paris staff who was stabbed to death in the metro (subway).

Von Schaumburg's retaliatory measure was decreed the same day of the killing, but was not made public until today.

News of the assassination and of the German action followed word from reliable informants in this capital of unoccupied France last night that the Petain government had decided to impose the death penalty for Communist activity and was preparing a series of decrees to bring the unoccupied zone into line with German measures against the growing ferment.

The decision was said to have been made at an unexplained midweek meeting of the council of ministers yesterday as a German roundup of persons opposed to Nazi occupation troops netted upwards of 6,000 arrests in Paris alone. Meager advices today from the occupied French capital said the roundup still was under way but on a reduced scale.

The newspaper Cri du Peuple, mouthpiece of Jacques Doriot's Fascist-inclined French popular army, reported that the De Gaullist and Communist movements have become reconciled and have co-ordinated their activities, presumably in occupied France.

Greater interest was attached, however, to the section of the publication's editorial in capital letters in which the Doriot group proclaimed: "Measures which the German authorities have just taken against the Communists should—as we have long demanded—have been taken by French authorities."

Text of Decree

VICHY, Aug. 23.—(Saturday)—(AP)—The text of Nazi General Von Schaumburg's order today said:

"Notice: On August 21 a member of the German army was the victim of assassination at Paris.

"In consequence, I decree:

"1. From August 23, all French held in state arrest by the German authorities in France or arrested for them will be held as hostages.

"2. In case of a new criminal act, a number of hostages corresponding to the gravity of the act committed will be shot.

"(Signed) Von Schaumburg, general commanding, German forces of occupation.

Cattle Rustling Around Atlanta Is Investigated

Jury To Study Bills of Indictment Against 'Big Names.'

A reported "large business" in rustled cattle in and around Atlanta is being investigated by Solicitor General John A. Boykin and the Fulton grand jury, it was learned yesterday.

Just how big the "large business" is was not fully known, but it was understood the jury is planning to consider bills of indictment against some "big names."

Already the July-August jury has indicted four persons for stealing valuable cows and two cattle buyers for receiving the stolen animals.

Two of the four indicted for stealing cows, E. E. Morris and J. G. Morris, promptly entered pleas of guilty and testified before the jury.

Several other witnesses have been called by the jury on this racket and it was reported the jurymen will devote more attention to it next week.

Reports of increased activity in cattle rustling have come from several sections of Georgia, and also from Texas, where the famous Rangers are finding that higher meat prices have tempted more rustlers to defy the old time "noose" law.

A special investigator for Boykin has been working up evidence in the cattle rustling racket in Fulton county for the last week or more.

English Factory Workers Labor 11-Hour Day Without Grumble

Women Man Machines, Increase Morale of Mill Forces.

(This is the first of a series of articles by Miss Thompson, describing British defense activity and the relationship between management and labor in the Midlands.)

By DOROTHY THOMPSON.

LONDON—(By Wireless) — An enormous, glowing cylinder is moving slowly on a crane to be lowered into a vat of oil from which in a moment will issue a fountain of smoke and flame. Another immense red-hot cylinder of steel, resting horizontally, is being pounded into form by a great anvil moving inexorably up and down.

The heat sears our faces. A young woman in blue overalls adjusts a lever and a piston covered with carborundum slides in and out of a blue-steel gun barrel, leaving the interior brilliant as a mirror.

Except for the groan of the machinery and the rat-tat-tat of small tools, the great arena is quiet. Men and girls glance up from their work and smile at the visitor and look back again with steady, watching eyes.

It goes on day and night, night and day.

Passing out of the factory the workers glance at the sky. If it is overladen with low clouds they sigh. It is such a relief, for it is unlikely that planes will come tonight.

This factory makes the famous Bofors antiaircraft guns. Bombs blew up the railroad tracks four hours before a shipment of guns was due to leave for a western port, and the Middle East workers laid them again and the guns passed out on schedule.

Men and women stream into the factory at 8 o'clock in the morning and stream out again at 7:30 at night as fellow workers on the night shift stream in. Six days a week, and sometimes on Sunday; 11 hours a day, minus lunch—60 hours a week is their minimum.

"Now it is not right," says the manager. "We ought to have three eight-hour shifts. But Britain is short of manpower. We are fight-

Story of Forests To Be Told by Train Exhibit

Show To Visit 58 Towns of 6 States in Next 2 Months.

By HAROLD MARTIN.

The forests mean something to everybody, from the baby in a wooder cradle to the old gentleman tapping through his declining years on a wooden cane. The forests mean something to everybody, in every walk of life, from the farmer who picks up a few dollars on pulpwood to the tycoon in an office of glass and steel and stone—who sells trucks to lumbermen to haul logs from the woods.

The story of what the forests mean to people will be told during the next two months by forest officials in a special exhibition train that will visit 58 towns in six states—small towns, where the people live near to the woods, and where the story of good forest conservation needs most to be told.

The train, conceived by Joseph C. Kircher, regional forester; Clint Davis, his educational supervisor, and Charles Gilett, industrial forester for the Seaboard Air Line Railway, pulled out last night for Clinton, S. C., and the first stop on its 4,500-mile tour, which will take it from Virginia to Florida, through the two Carolinas, Georgia and Alabama.

Story of Forest's Worth.

The first car tells the story of what the forests mean to people. To the man who makes his living in the woods, cutting ties and poles, carving wood into novelties, slashing trees for turpentine. To the farmer, whose house and barn are built of wood, who saves his land from erosion by planting, who farms his forests for timber that brings in cash. To the housewife, who uses wood in myriad ways, from the nylon in her stockings to the wooden-handled brush she scrubs her back with in the tub.

It tells the story of what the forests mean to the businessman, both directly and indirectly, from the cutting of Christmas trees o the servicing of loggers' trucks. And of what forests mean to sportsmen, to children, to whole communities whose water supply is protected by forests on the watershed.

The story is told through illuminated pictures, and through the display of the myriad wooden articles for which people have use. I' was prepared by the WPA as a visual education project.

Fire Hazards Told.

The secon car illustrates what happens when a forest is unprotected from fire—blackened stumps, dead trees, the white bones of game animals, and by contrast shows a section of protected forest—trees grown to marketable size, cover for game, cover for soil that prevents erosion.

In the third car a continuous movie showing good forest management methods will be shown, demonstrating practical methods of "farming" the forests to get the greatest return, and at the same time perpetuating growth forever.

The train is jointly sponsored by the United States Forestry Service, the Forestry Extension Service, and by the forestry departments of the states through which it will pass. It was made available to them by the Seaboard railroad, which serves 75 per cent of the pulp mills in the south, and which finds 18 per cent of its total business comes from forest products.

Nazis Decree 'Destruction' Of Leningrad

German columns thrusting northeastward and almost due north.

The city's airports ,the Germans said, were under heavy aerial assault in preparation for the coming effort to storm it.

Nazis Admit Resistance.

The Soviet general staff's communique for yesterday afternoon reported that fighting continued in the old areas of Kingisepp and Novgorod, the one 75 miles to the southwest of Leningrad and the other 100 miles south, and from this Moscow observers drew the inference that the Germans made no substantial gain.

This was in part supported by the Nazis themselves, who, while not receding from their claims that things were going generally well for them, acknowledged that the Russians were sending heavy reserves into the line in a contest that was "not yet decided."

The authorized spokesman, who reversed the practice common to both belligerents in speaking with less complete optimism than the German high command, also admitted that "islands of opposition" remained behind the German lines.

As to the central front, he conceded it was possible that fighting still went on as far as 220 miles west of Gomel, which the Nazis recently captured, and said that new "encirclement" battles were developing.

The German command itself claimed that somewhere east of Gomel the Russians were in flight; that the drive on Leningrad was moving steadily; and that in eliminating the "last bases" of the Russians in the southern Ukraine the Nazis had occupied the small port of Ochakov, 45 miles to the east of besieged Odessa.

Yet, a Berlin spokesman acknowledged in supplement that the Soviet forces were still holding some of their bridgeheads on the lower Dnieper river

The Nazi communique issued new claims of vast Russian losses, this time stating that 1,250,000 Red prisoners were in hand and that 14,000 Soviet tanks, 15,000 cannon and 11,250 planes had been destroyed or captured. From this less official German sources went on to estimate that an aggregate of 5,050,000 Russian soldiers had been put out of action.

SS Corps Recruiting.

Nothing was said of German losses, but in this connection there was a significant development: Berlin announced that qualified men from 17 to 45 would now be admitted into the militarily exclusive SS Elite Corps and required to serve only for the duration of "the emergency" and not for the customary 12 years.

Moreover, in the face of earlier German predictions that it would be all up with Russia before winter, the Berlin censorship allowed the transmission of dispatches reporting that many sleighs were being provided for army use.

Leningrad was clearly prepared for a terrible siege. Recruits of the "people's army" called up to aid the regulars drilled on the banks of the Neva river; thousands of men urgently raised fortifications on the city's approaches and barricades in its streets.

Tass, the Soviet news agency, circulated the slogan:

"The enemy must find his grave. The city of Lenin will never be given up."

All Leningrad Ready.

"All Leningrad," said this agency, "lives in an atmosphere of preparedness for battle, ready to fulfill its holy duty to the fatherland."

During the day the situation involving Iran, a country important because of its strategic position on the route to India and in the oil shed of Asia Minor, grew more delicate.

Britain and Russia have demanded that some 3,000 Germans alleged to be in the country be ousted at once and Russian informants in London indicated that if Iran's final reply was not satisfactory British and Russian troops would enter the country. It was reported from the Near East that columns of British war materials and armored cars were moving across Iraq toward the Iranian frontier.

Authoritative persons in London used this somewhat ominous phrase: "No operations have begun."

Just how many Germans were in Iran was lost in dispute. The Iranian minister to Washington, declaring during the day that his country would resist aggression from any source, insisted that the total German population of his country was about 700.

Arnall Urges Press Be Paid For Legal Ads

Tells Toccoa Group It Is Only Just Papers Be Reimbursed.

Bu DUDLEY GLASS,
Constitution Staff Writer.

TOCCOA, Ga., Aug. 22.—Newspapers ought to be paid "to the fullest extent" for publishing state and county legal advertising, Attorney General Ellis Arnall told editors of the state today in a speech before the Georgia Press Association.

"It is only just that they be paid, and not even compensation for the great amount of public service they render," he told the group.

His speech was devoid of political talk, and was followed by a session of questioning in which the attorney general was asked if he felt editors should charge an extra dollar if legal advertising runs over the 100-word base.

The second day of the fifty-fifth meeting of the Georgia Press Association was taken up principally with routine discussions.

It was enlivened by the arrival of Mrs. John R. Marsh, who wrote under the name of Margaret Mitchell a book called "Gone With the Wind." I understand they also made a movie of it. There is no wind, an adage says, which blows nobody good. The shipyard strike prevented or postponed the launching of the ship Atlanta. So Peggy Mitchell, who was to have busted the bottle of champagne across the Atlanta's bow had a chance to come to this convention to the satisfaction of one and all. And, of course, her presence interrupted proceedings for the time.

It was of general opinion that the address by the Governor Wednesday night was a most tactful talk. The Georgia Press Association several years ago adopted a rule against inviting candidates or other politicians to its meetings. But the Governor of the state is something else. He sensed that and didn't talk politics.

An executive session was devoted to weekly newspaper problems. Otis Brumby, of the Cobb County Times, pleaded for a better break for the weeklies in national advertising.

The afternoon was devoted to round-table discussions of weekly newspapers' troubles, circulation, advertising and news.

Convention Sidelights.

Slated for association president two years hence is dapper Gordon S. Chapman, a "furriner." Chapman, 54-year-old editor, owner and publisher of the Sandersville Progress, was born in Union Springs, Ala. He is expected to be named vice president, succeeding Brumby, who is to become president through the GPA custom of advancement.

Chapman boasts the Progress is the largest newspaper in Georgia, on the face of its front page. It is eight regular columns in width but the columns are 22 inches deep. Chapman says the nearest paper misses this column depth by at least a half-inch.

The welded steel Lake Louise hotel, owned and operated by Industrialist-Churchman R. G. LeTourneau, was conspicuously plastered with "no smoking" signs when the convention opened. Delegates paid no heed and the signs disappeared one by one, except in the dining hall.

When newspapermen ignored even those signs at breakfast today hotel employes tactfully turned the signs to the walls. The hotel has regulations against all alcoholic beverages in lobby or rooms. Signs so stating have stayed put.

Delegates were as chary of commenting on the Governor's address as was the Governor in making comments last night that could be called political. The association rule against political discussion grew out of a hectic session at Carrollton during Talmadge's first administration when the Governor made a speech attacking the New Deal and provoked a flurry of rebuttal resolutions and floor speeches. Several delegates, who asked their names not be used, expressed the opinion the Governor's address last night "sounded like appeasement."

Keene Purchases Avondale Theater

Lionel Keene, Atlanta theater man, gave himself a business birthday present yesterday.

He bought the Avondale theater in Avondale Estates.

Keene purchased the Kirkwood theater on August 24, 1940, and as yesterday was August 22, the day he began branching out into the chain field, he called it a birthday present to himself.

Active general management of both theaters will be assumed by Keene with Virgil G. Hopkins, manager of the Avondale, and Harmon Rosser, manager of the Kirkwood.

Short at Paramount Shows Piedmont Tour

The Paramount theater is presenting a short entitled "Three Minute Highlights" showing Atlantans and Georgians on the Piedmont Western Educational tour.

Filmed by Ken Stambaugh, Atlanta newsreel photographer, who accompanied the expedition to film a one-reel short subject, "America Our Alma Mater," the short includes a fishing party given by Helen Parrish, young Georgia starlet with Universal Studios, for Mrs. J. H. Martin, director, and 115 members of the caravans.

LAUGHTER DISH OFFERED IN "HOLD THAT GHOST"

Al Sharp's stories about Joe the Ghost have met their master. It is in a screamingly funny concoction of the corniest corn humor dished up in generous helpings at the Fox theater currently in "Hold That Ghost," by the screen's newest comedy stars, Abbott and Costello.

The little fat man and his beanpole stooge inherit a tavern from a gangster, simply because they were with him when he died, and the gangster, being something of a doubting Thomas, had made his will read that whoever was with him when he died would get the place.

All the old scare methods are used. They arrive with sinister people in a lightning storm. The place is dark, has not been open for months. It used to be a gambling house, with buttons on the walls to be pushed to change the appearance of the room in a moment. Costello finds all the trick mechanism, but by the time he gets his pals into the room, the appearance has changed back normal. They think him goofy. Ghosts move throughout the house. One even gets in bed with Costello.

"Hold That Ghost" tops Abbott and Costello's "Buck Privates" and "In the Navy." It is a picture for laughs. It's only weak spot is its climax. So much fun had been going on, it runs flat at the end. But then, they had to end it someway. It is another money hit for Universal studios who are letting no grass grow under their new comic stars.

The supporting cast includes Ted Lewis and his orchestra, the Andrews Sisters, Richard Carlson, Joan Davis and Misha Auer.

SOMETHING DIFFERENT AT RIALTO

This "Here Comes Mr. Jordan," at the Rialto now, is something different.

It contains quite a bit of comedy, yet it isn't a comedy. It's more of a fantasy. And it grips you and holds you, though you know it's impossible. It is exceedingly well directed and more than well acted by all concerned.

Evelyn Keyes, the Atlanta girl who had a nice bit in "G. W. T. W." has her best part to date and gets by with it very well. Not inspired, but adequate. From the comedy angle, Jimmy Gleason runs away with the show.

Robert Montgomery is the star. He is a prize fighter with a yen for flying. He crashes.

Edward Everett Horton is kind of an apprentice to Claude Rains, a personal representative of heaven who receives mortals who go dead. When Montgomery crashes, Mr. Horton, new to the job, thinks he's dead, cremates the corpse—and leaves Bob without a body. You figure that out—I'd need a whiff of a marijuana cigaret. Which are not provided even to cash customers.

Anyway, Mr. Rains tries to square things by furnishing Bob a series of bodies. He insists on good ones—weight around 190, and "in the pink." All of Bob's bodies get killed, but his soul goes marching on. Finally—one hopes—he lands in the body of a pugilist who has just won the heavyweight championship, finds the girl again—who is Evelyn Keyes—and there's the fade-out.

Sounds like a problem picture, doesn't it? But it's not if you caught it at the beginning and know what it's all about. One of the most interesting films I've seen this summer.

Crabmeat Tariff Jumps 50 Per Cent

WASHINGTON, Aug. 22.—(AP)—Crabmeat became the instrument of another economic restriction apparently aimed at Japan today, with the announcement of a 50 per cent advance in the tariff on all imports of that commodity, whether fresh, preserved or processed.

For years, Japan has been the Americas' principal foreign source of supply for the delicacy. For the past several years, the United States has been buying more than $3,000,000 worth of Japanese crabmeat annually. Last year the figure was $3,269,000.

The action had behind it the authority of the Tariff Commission, which had investigated the comparative costs of marketing foreign and imported crabmeat and found them much lower in Japan than here.

The rate on crabmeat, fresh canned, or in paste or any other form fixed by the 1930 (Smoot-Hawley) tariff act was 15 per cent of value. The new rate is 22 1-2 per cent of value.

CRAB MEAT ORDER PLEASES U. S. PACKERS.

BILOXI, Miss., Aug. 22.—(AP)—Crab meat packers and shippers in Biloxi, heart of the Mississippi coast seafood canning industry, were pleased today over President Roosevelt's order increasing the tariff on imported crab meat, which comes principally from Japan.

"It will mean lots to people of the Mississippi coast," George Dubaz, of Dubaz Brothers Canning Company, said. Other packers expressed similar sentiments.

Finnish Ship Damaged by $50,000 Blaze

Chief Officer Dies as Fire Destroys Crew Quarters.

NEW YORK, Aug. 22.—(AP)—The second ship fire of the week here did an estimated $50,000 damage today to the 4,956-ton Finnish freighter Aurora and took the life of the ship's chief officer, who suffocated in his bunk while launches rescued 18 other members of the crew.

Meantime, the death toll in Monday's Brooklyn waterfront fire, which destroyed the Cuba Mail Line cargo ship Panuco, mounted to 31, with the recovery of 12 more bodies from the East river. At least two more men still are missing.

Today's fire on the Aurora, which was lying at anchor in the Hudson river just north of the George Washington bridge, destroyed the quarters of the officers and crew, the salon, wheelhouse and pantry.

After inspecting the ship with police officials, the Finnish consul general, T. O. Vahervuori, said there was no evidence of sabotage, and expressed belief that fire started in the pantry. Police concurred with the no-sabotage view, but agents of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, who also investigated, declined comment.

Order To Rival 'Purple Heart' Is Considered

Florida Commander Says Move Pondered in Seven States.

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla., Aug. 22.—(AP)—O. B. Carr, Florida department commander of the military order of the Purple Heart, said today the formation of a rival organization was being considered by members from seven states.

The Florida members withdrew from the order at a recent national convention. Carr said the cause was a "commercial bookselling tie-up," which was adopted over the opposition of Florida, Georgia, Wisconsin, Indiana, Missouri, Minnesota and Maryland.

He said representatives from these states were discussing whether to form a new national group or organize into separate state bodies and merge later.

The nation's first Purple Heart chapter, he said, was granted at St. Petersburg.

BRING 'EM BACK ALIVE—That's the motto of 18-year-old Charles D. Wharton, staff zoologist of the State Department of Natural Resources, who collects and stuffs snakes and claims he gets a big kick out of it. Here he is getting friendly with two members of the brown water clan. They call him "Charlie, the Snake Man."

Atlanta Youth Is Given Title Of 'Snake Man'

Charlie Wharton, 18, Collects, Feeds, Studies and Stuffs 'Em.

By LUKE GREENE.

They call him "Charlie the Snake Man" or "The Frank Buck of the Capitol."

Actually he's Charlie D. Wharton, lanky, 18-year-old youngster who takes to snakes like a duck takes to water.

He collects 'em, feeds 'em, studies 'em and stuffs em. And the snakes and Charlie seem to get along fine.

Young Wharton, who will be a sophomore at Emory University this fall, is staff zoologist of the State Department of Natural Resources in his spare time.

All of those wicked little numbers you see posing in the glass cases of the state museum were once his pets. But there came a time when they had to give their lives for the sake of curious out-of-state spectators and young Wharton was there to do the embalming.

Once Afraid of Them.

He doesn't exactly know how he happened to take up this strange hobby, which is now a business with him. Fact is, he used to be afraid of the critters.

This young naturalist goes snake huntin' like most men would go rabbit or coon huntin'. And when he takes a vacation he doesn't go to the seashore or mountains, but heads straight to the ranch of his favorite snake catcher in Florida.

He spent last summer trying to collect various species of snakes over Georgia. He missed some of the big ones, however, and had to order them from Florida.

15 in Collection.

At present he has his own collection of about 15 wiggly creatures at his home on Covington road. Or rather in his garage. Occasionally he takes them out and lets them exercise by crawling all over him. All this he does as nonchalantly as a feminine dog-lover taking her pooch for a walk. Incidentally, he explained he had no close neighbors.

Although such carrying-on would make most people shudder, Wharton regards it as tame recreation. And he gets all worked up about those people who want to kill every snake they see.

Some Do Lots of Good.

"People ought to get acquainted with the snakes that are not harmful," he declared. "Many non-poisonous types do a lot of good."

Young Wharton talks with a slow, easy drawl and thinks a long time before he makes a statement. And he doesn't particularly care for the women. Says he's content to string along with the snakes.

And oh, yes, the youthful zoologist thinks it would just be ducky if someone would start a live reptile collection in Atlanta.

So far, however, he hasn't consulted the Chamber of Commerce to find out what effect this might have on the population figures, since there might be a mass emigration of residents who would be flabbergasted at the idea of a whole batch of these creatures crawling around in one place.

Atlanta Woman Is Searching For Recent Bride Named Eloise

Wanted: One recent bride whose name is "Eloise."

Mrs. F. O. Wright, of 685 Argonne avenue, who believes that credit should go where credit is due, is seeking either "Eloise" or the person who gave "Eloise" a beautiful set of table spoons for a wedding gift.

The reason is that "Eloise" wrote Mrs. Wright a nice note of thanks for the tablespoons, which Mrs. Wright had not given "Eloise." In fact, Mrs. Wright doesn't even know anybody named "Eloise." But she thinks that the person who does know "Eloise" and gave her the "precious gift" should know that "Eloise" liked them and will "always treasure them."

Mrs. Wright was so anxious to find the real giver or the receiver of the spoons she sent her daughter, Mrs. Margaret Wright Hawkins, to the county ordinary's office yesterday looking for marriage certificates on all brides named "Eloise." This didn't solve the problem. If anyone knows "Eloise" or who sent the bride the tablespoons, Mrs. Wright's telephone number is Vernon 5141.

Raid Warning: Atlanta To Be Bombed Today

9 Naval Planes To Drop Pamphlets Aiding Defense Bonds.

Atlanta will be bombed today!

Nine naval planes from the Camp Gordon training base will swoop over the city at 10:15 o'clock this morning, bombarding the city.

Their ammunition will be 50,000 pamphlets, urging the purchase of Defense Savings Bonds and Defense Savings Stamps, and the demonstration is part of the Treasury Department's drive to place before everybody the need for all-out support of the defense savings plan.

The flight, which will be led by Commander D. W. Harrigan of the Naval Cadet Training station, was conceived and sponsored by the Junior Chamber of Commerce after a conference with Treasury Department officials and Arthur Cheatham, assistant to Marion Allen, state administrator of the defense savings staff.

"There is a peculiar symbolism in the flight," said Cheatham yesterday.

"Here are planes, flying above an unprotected city, dropping messengers, not of destruction, but of warning. They are saying, in effect, just this: 'We have come floating down to you, a harmless slip of paper. Over many European cities things have come floating down, not harmless slips of paper, but bombs that will rend and tear and burn wherever they strike—bombs that blindly take the life of the child as quickly as the life of the soldier, that blast the hospital, the church, or the school to rubble as impersonally as they blast the gun emplacement or the fort.'

"We are trying to put across the idea that if we do not heed the plea of these pamphlets, to support our government with all the resources at our command, now, while there is time, there may come a time when we see enemy bombs dropping here, crushing and destroying all that lies below them.

"These are leaflets. They might be bombs."

Lawyer Fails To Halt Death Ride of Coates

Etheridge Issues Papers Here, But Attorney Misses Sheriff.

A legal maneuver designed to put a crimp in the death ride of Charles Coates from Ringgold to Tattnall prison, where he is under sentence to be electrocuted September 5 for the murder of State Patrolman Fred Black Jr., failed here yesterday by 10 minutes.

Judge Paul S. Etheridge Sr. signed a petition of habeas corpus and set a hearing on it for 10 o'clock this morning, but Frank Bowers, a lawyer, missed serving the papers on Sheriff J. M. Moreland by 10 minutes when the sheriff and state patrolmen, carrying Coates to Reidsville, stopped for rest at patrol headquarters on Confederate avenue.

Coates, whose appeals have been denied by high courts and by the Governor, was re-sentenced yesterday in Catoosa county by Judge John C. Mitchell, of Dalton.

Joe Turner, attorney for Coates, contended in the habeas corpus petition Sheriff Moreland was holding Coates illegally because Coates was convicted by an 11-man jury.

The petition stated the trial judge excused one juror after evidence had been heard with the consent of counsel for both sides. Turner declared Coates did not know of this arrangement and had never consented for his fate to be decided by 11 men.

Bowers said that Turner will seek to bring another habeas corpus petition for Coates in Tattnall county.

Reserve Board Orders Credit Restrictions

pairs or improvements on existing real estate when amount is less than $1,000; same restriction on cash loans of less than $1,000.

Rules for enforcement of these restrictions were contained in a 23-page set of regulations, some of which will not become effective until later. For instance, renewals of and additions to present installment credit will not be affected by the rules until November 1. Another rule requiring a minimum monthly payment of $5 on installment credit will not be effective until January 1.

Today's order does not affect any cash transactions, any credit outstanding prior to September 1 (except if renewed or expanded later), and does not limit ordinary charge accounts. Exceptions were provided in some cases. For instance, the restriction on small cash loans does not apply to students. Likewise, airplanes to be used in connection with the Civil Aeronautics Administration program and equipment for defense housing are exempted.

Also, more liberal terms are authorized for persons swearing in writing that they cannot afford to meet the terms and will suffer "undue hardship" if denied more liberal credit.

Lay-Away Plan.

Firms selling merchandise on the "lay-away" plan can figure the maximum time payment period from the time the purchased article is taken away by the consumer, rather than when ordered by him.

The restrictions, which were promulgated under a 1917 statute, will be administered by the board through the 12 regional federal reserve banks and their 24 branches.

To start with, the board granted a general license to everybody to extend installment credit in compliance with these regulations. But, beginning the first of next year, all stores, banks and others will have to have individual licenses obtainable from the federal reserve banks.

Violators of the regulations will have their licenses suspended, which will prohibit them from giving any kind of installment credit.

The board warned the public and business that today's order is just the beginning of credit regulations, and that changes "may be expected from time to time as experience with the regulations is gained and as changing economic conditions indicate the need therefor."

This meant that, at any time, the board may put additional articles on the credit restriction list, may change the down payment or maximum time of repayment, or may limit other forms of consumer credit besides installment credit.

Exceptions Revealed.

Some exceptions were made for farmers, particularly needy ones, and those seeking cash needed for farming operations or equipment.

Special exception also was made on cash loans for medical, dental, hospital and funeral expenses when necessary to prevent hardship.

Mortgage loans in connection with building or buying a complete house—not improvement of an existing house—also are exempt.

Another rule requires that installments must be approximately equal in size, eliminating the practice in some cases of "ballooning" a large part of an installment debt into the last payment. Payments also must not be more than one month apart, except in certain cases.

Merchants also are forbidden to make installment sales when they have reason to believe the customer has borrowed his down payment.

17 New Cases Of Polio in State

Seventeen new cases of infantile paralysis were reported to the State Health Department yesterday, three of them from DeKalb county, bringing the state's total since June 1 to 490.

At the same time, it was announced that one case in Cherokee county had been duplicated in being reported and one in Atlanta was mistakenly diagnosed as polio, reducing the total by two cases.

Two of the DeKalb county cases were in Decatur, on Greenwood circle and Winona drive, and the other was from near Lithonia. Atlanta reported one case, which began on August 15. Counties reporting new cases were Bartow, Bulloch and Sumter, with two each, and Bacon, Bibb, Bleckley, Polk, Rockdale, Walton and Washington, with one each.

Resolutions Ask Defense Bases

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Aug. 22.—(AP)—Resolutions touching on the national defense were introduced today before the resolutions committee of the Young Democratic Clubs of America including one that the government, if necessary, should secure defense bases in Dakar, Cape Verde islands, Siberia, opposite Alaska, Singapore and "other strategic points considered necessary by military and naval leaders."

Another resolution bearing on defense of the nation urged that the President break off diplomatic relations with the pro-Nazi government of Vichy and recognize and assist the Free French forces.

Others would urge the President to use the full strength of the Navy and air forces to guarantee safe delivery of United States aid to nations resisting aggression; that the nation should resist by armed force if necessary any further Japanese aggression, particularly in Indo-China.

Mrs. Richard B. Russell Reported 'Holding Own'

Mrs. Richard B. Russell Sr., of Winder, who has been ill in Emory University hospital, was reported to be "holding her own" yesterday.

Federal Judge Robert L. Russell, of the northern district of Georgia, said his mother's condition was regarded as serious but that she was no worse yesterday. She has been in the hospital for approximately two weeks, he said.

Senator Richard B. Russell Jr. rushed to Atlanta from Washington to be at the bedside of his mother.

ing an enemy with the human resources of a continent to draw on."

Wages will not buy food beyond the rations allowed. One egg per week, very little meat, plenty of vegetables now, but no cream or butter, only a little margarine — how do they stand it?

The answer is that they stand it with remarkable spirits, health and efficiency. Why? Because of their morale.

Morale Factors.

This morale is due to the following factors: Patriotism and the fact that no private owners or stockholders are making profits, so the people are working for the whole community; intelligent organization work, with emphasis always on the human element may well be considered a psychological factor; continual intercourse between management and workers, and the sympathetic interest in their welfare shown by assistants who stop people working if they show any exhaustion; communal feeding; the presence of women workers who in every factory they have entered have lifted the spirit, cheerfulness and work standards of the entire body.

The experience of seeing England at war throws light on the whole question of management and labor relationships. What stands out in brilliant clarity is that even such things as fatigue are largely psychological; that men and women will work beyond any normal powers for what they consider necessary and essential to the whole people; that they will drive machines, but will not be driven by them; that equality of effort, sacrifice and danger takes the sting out of all of them and that the delegation of responsibility to the individual and to the group brings out more energy than any slave driver can create.

Effort Above Normal.

England has not been able to keep up the same amount of effort at all times. Always since the war began it has been way above normal. But in the days of Dunkirk and the months that followed it was super-human because the workers knew the fate of Britain was immediately at stake.

Both management and workers testify that in those days men and women worked at a speed over stretches of time and with an efficiency that baffled all standards. They fought, as it were, a hand-to-hand combat with the enemy at their machines and did not even seem tired.

As England regained her equilibrium and settled down to the war this super-human standard relaxed to a steadier output, more organized and less fantastic.

Were a crisis of commensurate proportions to come again, it is possible the same energies would be released. But for me, the outstanding fact in this war is that men do not know what is in them or what resources of energy they can tap if necessary.

The ordinary man is much greater than he thinks or seems to be.

The man who can perfectly paint anything but your wife's lips carries his ad in the Business Service column in the Want Ads of The Constitution.

The Doctors' Orders

On the advice of a committee of Fulton county physicians, the opening date of the schools in Atlanta and Fulton county has been deferred until September 15. No parent will complain against this wise move to reduce the menace of the dwindling polio germs to a stage of utter defeat.

The day-by-day reports recently on the epidemic have been increasingly encouraging and indications are that early in September this mysterious blight will have disappeared entirely, after having destroyed too much of the happiness that children gain from the unrestricted freedom of vacations.

Parents and children in this section deserve credit for the voluntary restrictions they adopted to minimize the dangers of infection these last few months. All of them will endorse this wise precaution of the physicians. All of them will appreciate, too, the calm efficiency with which the physicians have handled this epidemic. Quiet warnings that caution should be exercised in the avoidance of possible sources of infection were responsible for the quiet observance of those warnings. The whole crisis was handled without a trace of hysteria and the doctors deserve credit.

Among licenses lately suspended is one, in New England, of a motorist who sped 100 yards through traffic while kissing the girl friend. Taxi, mister?

The Patriot's Dilemma

'Tis a bit confusing to the average man, this publicity from the Department of Interior advising him of his patriotic duty in these times of emergency.

On one hand the honorable secretary of the interior, Harold L. Ickes, is wailing and bemoaning a shortage of gasoline. He has urged the motorists on the Atlantic seaboard to curtail their consumption of the fuel. By cutting out pleasure driving, gasoline needed for the Army and other essential industry can be saved. He has even talked of rationing the fuel.

With the other hand the Interior Department is continuing to flood the eastern and southern states with attractive publicity urging travel about the United States—"Travel to keep Americans fit for patriotic duty," it says. Paul V. McNutt, co-ordinator of all health and welfare activities affecting the national defense, epitomizes his department's work with the slogan: "Travel strengthens America: it builds the nation's health, wealth and unity" and declares it a worth-while contribution to our home defense program.

It is a bit confusing.

However, of course they aren't as bad as they seem. The eastern seaboard is the only section affected by a gasoline shortage. The travel publicity is intended for the entire country, not this section alone. And gasoline men expect the shortage in the east and south to be no more after adjustments in transportation facilities are made and pipelines are constructed. Then there will probably be a concerted effort to get us all to recreate by travel.

It's easier to forgive than it is to forget and it's easier to eat ice cream than it is to do either.

Old Glory

That Americans are still sentimental about the American flag is one of the most encouraging signs in the national life.

A flag with historical background now waves bravely from a pole 70 feet high on grounds of the Battle Hill sanatorium. For this is the flag that waved over the national capitol in Washington during the history-making period when debates raged over the lend-lease bill, national conscription, the extension of the draft, and the appropriation of unprecedented sums of money for defense.

The pensioned edition of Old Glory was obtained for the sanatorium by Congressman Ramspeck, in response to an appeal of a patient at the institution. The flagpole was built with funds subscribed among the patients. But the purchase of a new flag seemed remote until one patient wrote to the congressman. So when the flag was retired from service on Capitol Hill, the congressman saw that it was reconditioned and sent to Battle Hill.

Proud of the flag's historical background, patients now smile happily as the flag bares itself to the winds for a second hitch of service.

Japan encircling herself is perhaps the biggest thing since Nick Altrock dislocated a shoulder in his one-man wrestling exhibition.

Down Mexico Way

Mexico is getting tourists this year, gobs of tourists.

People who once went to Europe or to various islands are going to Mexico.

A recent report of the tremendous increase in tourist business from the United States, says:

"Most of them come by automobile down the Pan-American highway, the only continuous paved road from the border to Mexico City. The Mexicans along the way see them as a tall, fair race from the north, speeding in automobiles, yet stopping to photograph a donkey; a people at once supercilious and arrogant, yet curious and naive; good-natured, yet ever oddly impatient for the butter, the pop, the gas, the air, the check—for service on the run.

"Mr. Typical Tourist, on his first visit to Mexico, is probably in a foreign country for the first time. He speaks little or no Spanish, which robs him of his sang froid. He compensates for it by arrogance, wisecracks and noise; reasons why Mexicans think him crude and clumsy."

All of which is a fair summing up and one which ought to teach something but which probably won't. We are the greatest spending tourists in the world, but the poorest ambassadors. We want ham and eggs for breakfast and steak and French fried for dinner, and grouse if we don't get them. We don't speak foreign languages and instead of being somewhat humble about it, become angry because the other people can't speak English.

Even so, if enough of them keep going down the highway, they will come to like us. We mean well. And some day, if we become aware of things, and begin the teaching of Spanish in grammar schools, we'll make even greater progress.

Go to Mexico if you can. They, too, are a friendly people.

But don't become angry if they object to you going in the house and photographing all the family. It isn't done there, by strangers, any more than it is at home.

And try the Mexican dishes. You can get ham and eggs at home.

And women will probably feel more put out over having to go without silk hose than men will over going to war.

Note on a Passing Day

For 302 years the town of Guilford in Connecticut has been the home of some small industries. Its workers have been craftsmen more than laborers.

No more can Guilford say that it has never known a strike. Eighty employes in the time laboratory of the New Haven Clock Company picketed the laboratory, following the example of about 1,400 employes in the New Haven factory.

Three hundred and two years of history have gone by the boards.

We haven't heard a good Scotch joke since the Hess story—and the point of that one still eludes us.

As a divertissement in the theater of world affairs, we have feats of magic and levitation, such as what holds Mussolini up?

Sufficient unto the day is the evil thereof; but how would closing the gas stations at 7 affect a night session of congress?

At last report the smoke of battle in Russia was thick on three fronts, or one less than a picnic stove.

Georgia Editors Say:

GEORGIA PRISON CAMPS

(From The Brunswick News.)

Once again the shackled ghost of Robert Elliott Burns—"I Am a Fugitive From a Georgia Chain Gang"—goes clanking across the face of Georgia.

At the prison camp at Rising Fawn, long one of the most notorious in the state, Lewis Gordon, Negro convict, is dead, victim of the satanic sweatbox. At the Sparta camp another Negro convict, Flam Bell, is dead, victim of a vicious and inhumane lashing.

Other tales of brutality to prisoners are related by a legislative investigating committee.

Unquestionably these disclosures will come as a shock to every decent Georgian. Under the Rivers administration—and to its credit it must be said that an earnest effort was made to better penological conditions—the sweatbox and lash were supposed to have been abolished. To find that they have returned to popular practice is not only shocking but is outrageous.

What Georgians need to appreciate, but apparently do not, is that when the state assumes responsibility of a prisoner that responsibility extends beyond merely extraction of the debt which the convict owes society. The state assumes, too, a responsibility to the prisoner to rehabiltiate him if possible. That this is not being done, at least in certain camps, is attested to by the disclosures at the Rising Fawn and Sparta camps.

It likely is not enough to insist that the sweatbox, the lash and other instruments of torture of like severity be abolished. The trouble goes deeper than the employment of such barbaric weapons. What we need is a complete understanding of the situation to get at the root of the trouble. That cannot be done so long as the jobs of wardens and guards are passed on to friends as political favors. Our penological system needs to be removed from politics, completely and finally.

WASHINGTON PARADE

By GLADSTONE WILLIAMS

HISTORY OF THE DNIEPER WASHINGTON, Aug. 22.—Press cables from European capitals telling of the reported destruction by the Russians of the huge hydroelectric dam on the Dnieper river near Dnieperopetrovsk in an effort to slow down the advance into the Ukraine bring to mind the important part that great natural barrier has played in the defense of Russia over the centuries.

Military technicians have anticipated from the start of the Russian campaign that the huge dam, the largest in the world at the time it was completed in 1932, would be dynamited and its millions of tons of swirling waters allowed to flood the lowlands of the river if the pressure of German forces threatened the Ukraine.

Now it is reported to have been done. If the dispatches prove to be true, the Dnieper has added to its toll over the centuries thousands of German troops, fleeing Russian peasants and straggling Soviet soldiers who were engulfed in the flood of waters released.

The part the Dnieper has played in past Russian resistance to invasion is illustrated in a highly interesting story told the writer by George H. Houston, former head of the Baldwin Locomotive Works and one of the foremost American engineers. He was one of the American technical experts whose aid was enlisted by the Russian government in building the great Dnieperopetrovsk dam.

After coffer dams were constructed to divert the river from its channel while concrete was being poured for the permanent structure, Mr. Houston and his associates found in the exposed river bed practically every type of military weapon that had been used in a thousand years of European wars. Invading armies for centuries had reached the Dnieper, only to have large segments of their forces destroyed in trying to cross the river.

A MAIN NATURAL BARRIER The stream has constituted one of the main natural barriers against Russian invasion for countless years. The dry river bed left by the coffer dams produced a wealth of material to attest to its past effectiveness. There were spears, chariots, armor, guns and artillery of all ages, mingled with the bones of men and horses falling victims of Russian resistance. Many of the rusty relics were recovered for museum pieces and are said to be on exhibition today at Moscow.

How far destruction of the dam will go in slowing down the present German drive remains to be seen, but military experts expect it to have a tremendous effect, temporarily at least. Flooding of the Dnieper lower regions, it is said, will not only make the terrain untenable for military operations or other purposes for years to come, but it will release considerable Russian forces for defensive action in other sections of the vast battle front.

Equally important, also, destruction of the dam will cause the Germans to lose the main source of electric power generation serving the region. If they ultimately succeed in capturing the Ukraine, exploitation of the area's industrial resources could not be maintained without the power produced by the Dnieperopetrovsk project.

"SCORCHED EARTH" RESISTANCE Confirmation of the reported destruction would be the most striking example yet given of the Russian "scorched earth" policy of resistance—a policy that calls for complete devastation in the path of the Soviet retreat. It is the same policy that brought ruin to Napoleon more than 100 years ago when, upon reaching Moscow, he found only a city of ashes.

Closely linked with reports concerning the Dnieper, Prime Minister Churchill is known to have informed President Roosevelt during their recent historic meeting on the high seas that the Russians, anticipating the possibility of being unable to hold the Ukraine, have been able to move out upwards of 50 per cent of the machine tools implementing their industrial production in the region.

If the Russians have succeeded in preserving this much of their industrial equipment, transferring it far back to other production centers in the Ural mountains, prospects for the war continuing on the eastern front are extended indefinitely.

Since returning to Washington the President has confided to close administration advisors that both he and Mr. Churchill are much more confident now of continued Russian resistance than they ever were.

The Soviets, it develops, had far more reserves in tanks and planes and other military equipment than the British or anyone else realized before the Nazi invasion started. Unless the war takes a turn that cannot now be anticipated, there is every expectation on the part of British and American informed military quarters that it will carry beyond the winter months and into next spring.

A conviction that the Russians will be able to stand up was easily read between the lines of the Churchill-Roosevelt message to Stalin offering to send a military mission to Moscow to discuss measures of British and American co-operation in furnishing war supplies. Since then the President has revealed more of the factors behind the move in his conferences with administration leaders.

SUGGESTS UNDERPASS

Editor, Constitution: Traffic again like Mark Twain and the weather, everybody talks about it, but nobody seems to do anything about it.

I thought Atlanta's traffic situation was about the world's worst until I spent last winter in Miami, where with fighting my way through narrow congested streets and waiting for a drawbridge to raise, in order to let a little sailboat go by, I came to the conclusion that while Atlanta traffic was bad enough it was not really the worst.

Like women who have no children but can always tell those who have how to raise them, allow me, who know very little about the traffic situation to offer a suggestion.

Construct an underpass at Ellis and Cain streets for east and west traffic. Thus giving north and south-bound traffic a continuous flow along Peachtree, the most congested part of the city, from Forsyth street to Harris. These two named streets being on high elevations with a decided drop on each side, the cost of an underpass could not be considered as a prohibited expense. The county is now making an experiment with a LeTourneau overpass, so let the city consider an underpass at these two points and dig in. J. N. MERRITT.

OBJECTS TO PEGLER.

Editor, Constitution: It has long been a mystery to me why Westbrook Pegler could see not the slightest good in anything or anybody. Now the cat is out of the bag! To prove he is right in his uncompromizing hatred of President Roosevelt, Pegler quotes Huey Long!

Well, we get our ideas from strange places sometimes, and if Mr. Pegler has the Long and Wheeler ideas of hating everything and everybody with different aspects and different ideas, that is his privilege. But there is a limit to the "freedom of speech and the press" when published views of well-known public figures endanger the nation with their personal spleens.

Many of us believed that Hitler was right when he first came to power in Germany. He was right for a while, but since he has broken every pledge and treaty, who but a moron could think he is still right?

Many of us thought Lindbergh was right at first, and he was right in trying to get this nation to build up its air force long ago, but who but a Wheelerite can say he is right now by thinking we can appease Hitler, allow him to rule Europe and Asia and remain safe from his attacks when he has built millions of bombers for that purpose?

And so we come back to Westbrook Pegler. Many of us think he is right, and he is right when he attacks certain evils in our body politic, but when he persistently attacks the person, and everything the person does—good or bad—then he is catering to the baser instincts of his readers and is not an asset to the national news forum.

REPLIES TO WHEELER

Editor, Constitution: My daughter, Miss June Maxwell, recently received one of Senator Wheeler's celebrated broadsides dealing with the international situation. Inasmuch as June is only seven years of age and seldom, if ever, bothers with such problems as national defense and the preservation of human liberty, she has asked me to reply for her.

Now, Senator, a rumpus is the last thing the Maxwells like to go in for. Despite all this, Senator, it seems that there is a guy over in Europe, aided and abetted by several lesser guys, who does not approve of people and nations leading the kind of life we like.

If you can convince me that little seven-year-old girls and boys are entirely safe here and all over the world, and if you can convince me that the bombs this old meany drops on unfortified cities will always hit nothing but military objectives and not blow into eternity helpless little girls like June, then I will use my limited influence in the cause that you and German Eagle, Lindbergh, so loudly espouse.

Heaven knows I have not agreed with everything President Roosevelt has done. I did not even vote for him the last time he ran, but when there is a mad dog loose in the community, I believe it behooves somebody to put him out of his misery. Even if the mad dog happens not to be operating in my part of town, I do not think it hurts me to keep my gun loaded and my doors barricaded. I am willing to fight for your right to view this matter as you see fit and to express your views, but I swear, Senator, I do not see how you and Lindbergh can be so childishly optimistic as to believe that our country can ever be immune to the ravages of the rampaging mad dog who has either crushed or "embraced to death" all of the European continent.

I feel compelled to turn a deaf ear to your eloquent pleas for national disunity and eventful ruination. J. Q. MAXWELL.

FAIR ENOUGH

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

The opinions expressed by Mr. Pegler in this column are his own and do not necessarily represent the opinion of The Atlanta Constitution.

Certain Discoveries WASHINGTON, Aug. 22 — By right I ought to be having the jumps over the state of the nation, the war, and all, but the business of viewing with alarm is in competent hands, and, anyway, I want to know whether this war emergency is to be used as a sort of general amnesty for all who have been exploiting not only the Nazi war but the war on want as well. Long before Hitler went crazy, our President told us that we were engaged in a war against want and there was an implied promise that there should be no profiteering in the struggle, no exploitation of the great emergency for private gain in wealth or power. Recalling President Roosevelt's first inaugural address, I remember that it would have been almost heretical to suggest that anyone could be so low as to impose on the situation, and the noble mood of the people, with greedy or ambitious motives.

Since then certain discoveries have made me cynical, but I still hold that wrong done in the name of recovery and reform should not be allowed to go by default just because we are moving into another war.

Now I have just been going through a book the size of a New York city directory, containing the transcript of an old trial of Umbrella Mike Boyle, the boss of the electricians' union in Chicago, who is so powerful there that he can threaten the whole city with paralysis just on his own say-so.

This Man Boyle He once raised all the bridges over the Chicago river and left them up, completely blockading these vital public works, the property of the whole people, or threatened to do so, I disremember which, to show his power over a small group of slightly skilled men and thus over the city.

In New York, his opposite number, Harry Van Arsdale, made a similar demonstration for similar reasons only recently when he pulled a general strike of electricians on construction jobs, including war construction at the Brooklyn yard, and blacked out Broadway at night.

I just hold that no one man, nor any relatively small group of men, should be allowed to possess this power to grab any community by the throat and that the national government, which now rules us all, has a duty to break this power of the few. This power was acquired under cover of the idealism want and whenever the mists in which we groped in the war on thinned out a little and some of us began to observe dark forms up to dirty work we got a few more grenades of that idealistic gas to obscure their doing.

Just lately this crook, Mike Boyle, of Chicago, has been blockading the installation of certain lights in a factory which is intended to build airplane engines for the Army, because he doesn't approve the company which manufactured the lights. In calling him merely a crook I am almost flattering him, because the United States circuit court of appeals once denounced him as "a highwayman, a betrayer of labor, a leech on commerce."

I have mentioned this before, but since then I have gone through this big book and at last have found what I was after.

Found The Data I was looking for the part where it was brought out that as long ago as 1915 Boyle was blockading the products of certain manufacturers of electrical switchboards to the advantage of other manufacturers, all in the sacred name of labor, and that he owned stock in one of the favored companies. This occurred in the testimony of Roy O. Samson, a special agent of the Department of Justice, who helped prepare the prosecution in the course of which it was shown that Umbrella Mike had shaken down many builders, one of them for $20,000.

The agent swore that another defendant in the same case told him that he had turned over to Mike Boyle $19,000 worth of stock in the States Electric Company, and that by reason of that interest, Mike was able to throw "a great deal of work" to the company.

Not even Van Arsdale, red-hot unioneer that he is, and with a high tolerance for crooks in unions, can apologize for his colleague in the same international, Umbrella Mike. I mentioned Mike to Van Arsdale one day during a little conference and Van Arsdale turned his palms up, shrugged, and said he would prefer not to discuss Mike at all. However, Van Arsdale, in telling me of the recantation of two men whom he had been convicted of shooting in a union battle, clean forgot to mention that the two recanting brothers first got $15,000 out of the union treasury. So maybe it is just one of their ethics to speak no evil of one another lest too much truth come out and they lose their power.

How do we know Mike's motives now in disallowing the product of one gift of stock in an interested competitor and was able to throw "a great deal of work" to his own company?

What is the point of all this, says you?

For God's sake, that is the very point of it. We all realize that such a man holds all this power over our second greatest city and we ask humbly, what of it?

Post Office Stumped.

Lack of a post office in a New Jersey township caused a letter sent from Hungary to be delayed eight months. The letter, addressed to Mrs. Anna Rozner Boxman, Pennsauken Township, was sent by Mrs. Boxman's sister in Hungary. It arrived but because there is no Pennsauken postoffice, it was stamped "address insufficient" and returned to the sender.

ONE WORD MORE

By RALPH McGILL.

THE WAR OUTLOOK WASHINGTON, D. C., Aug. 22.—Lord Beaverbrook's appearance in Washington, acting for London on the lend-lease bill, does not at all mean that England is planning an invasion of Germay, a source close to the White House said here today.

England is not yet able to make an invasion and does not plan one. If Germany thinks so, that suits England. She hopes the Germans will continue to fear it, but doubts if she will.

What England is concerned with is maintaining her far-flung armies and navies and with initiating a campaign in Africa while carrying on an aerial bombardment of Germany's resources.

She is not as well prepared to invade the continent as Germany is to invade the islands.

The sources also reveal that President Roosevelt, far from making any commitments to enter the war or to put the Navy in the war, was not even asked to do so. The President is reported to have told his cabinet and the senate committee that he was well aware that he could not, as President, make any commitments and that Churchill was well aware of it.

All he did do was to carry out the policy as confirmed by congress in the lend-lease bill which established this country's position as an opponent of Hitler and as a supporter of the British position in the war.

He did join in the eight points, which constitute a goal for all free peoples everywhere. These points he did commit himself to as a citizen and as the President. They nowhere commit this country to war.

OUR INTELLIGENCE It further is revealed that the President and some of his staff believe Japan now will remain quiet until Russia's ability definitely is determined.

The President is revealed as believing also that the French situation will "work itself out." This view is not concurred in by all his cabinet and advisers. The minority believes Japan may move at an early date and that the French cannot be depended upon.

The President is more optimistic.

More and more, however, those who have been dubious about the President's war and foreign policy are coming around in admiration of his knowledge and his bold actions. They are saying that his policy is sound and has been from the start. Only the diehards such as Wheeler, and those isolationist Republicans who have been accused, by their own commentators, of "selfish and ignoble actions," continue to deny him honesty and sincerity.

The Russians themselves, so Churchill is said to have told the President, did not believe they long would be able to retain the Ukraine, the Black Sea ports and even Leningrad.

The Russian morale is good and the Russians do not believe loss of these points will mean the loss of the war. They believe they can form a line of battle which will keep the German armies in Russia all winter and even into the summer of 1942.

England and Russia know that merely keeping the German armies there, even if they are in possession of much of Russia, is an important victory.

As long as Russia has an army intact, Germany cannot turn her back upon that army. Even though the Germans have driven the Russians back to the Ural mountains, the Germans still must face them and keep them there.

That is why this country and England must assist Russia. It is not at all, as some foolish ones are falsely saying, that England and the United States claim Russia a democracy, or that Russia, except indirectly, is fighting for democracy.

THE AZORES The same sources say that Germany may, if winter finds Russia still resisting, turn then to Portugal and to Spain.

Both nations would surrender at the first request and threat. Germany would make the request so as to obtain bases for the Atlantic campaign of the winter against English shipping.

Once Germany does this, the Azores will become important bases, vital to this country and to England.

It is said that, should Germany attempt to occupy them, the English fleet is pledged to intercept that invasion and stop it. England then would occupy the islands. After the occupation the Americans would take over, or, as has been done in Iceland, occupancy would be a joint job for the English and this country.

All this explains why the President could say, when he returned from his conference with Churchill, that he did not believe we were any nearer a shooting war than we had been before. Believing that Japan will not make an immediate move, and that the French problem possibly may be worked out, making unnecessary a forceful occupation of Martinique, he could see us still out of a shooting war.

He could say forcefully, however, that this country is in the war, and that it has a war to win. And he could speak out against those who have played politics with national defense, against those who have harmed Army morale for the sake of their own political ambitions, against those who think only of this country as a place to live comfortably without being willing to assist that country and work for it.

All this adds up as the most accurate estimate of administration opinion, obtained from completely reliable sources. They contradict in entirety the deliberate falsehoods and misrepresentations as to "commitments" and "secret treaties" alleged to have been made by the President.

Another Letter From a Bald-Headed Dad to His Red-Headed Daughter

By ROBERT QUILLEN.

My Dear Louise:

Your flaming patriotism makes you inclined to jump on everything and everybody who doesn't share your zeal, and I'm afraid your resentment of disloyalty will lead you to injustice if you don't watch your step.

I'm not criticizing your attitude. I'd rather have you too fiercely patriotic than not patriotic enough. I merely wish to caution you against condemning an entire family because it has one black sheep.

Several times of late, angered by newspaper reports of the evil done by spies and saboteurs, you have expressed a desire to manhandle "these darned foreigners."

That kind of talk is dangerous and unjust. A smart man once said, "You can't indict a whole nation." And I remind you again that any judgment of a group or class is beyond to be unfair. Any good thing or bad thing you may say about "young people" or "old people" or "church members" or "Democrats" or "foreigners" may fit a few of the group; but it can't apply to all, for no two are alike.

There are dangerous foreigners among us, some of them naturalized citizens, who are doing all they can to harm us. Whether they work in secret or openly, they are a deadly menace and must be suppressed.

And there are others who don't even call themselves Americans, but cling to the name they used in their native land, yet exercise the privilege of citizens and organize to influence government policies and frighten timid officials.

These you may criticize as you will, and no American will argue with you.

But there are foreign-born residents, not yet able to speak English without an accent, whose loyalty and love for America are beyond the capacity of many natives.

Make your best bow to Ortolani, Italian consular agent at Fort Worth, who said he would rather stay in an American concentration camp than be sent back to Italy. He has two sons in the United States armed forces, and you will find no better American than he.

There are many like him, and a blanket condemnation of foreigners is a cruel injustice to all of them.

It isn't the place of birth that makes a good American, but love of liberty and loyalty to America and American ideals.

Love, DAD.

ATLANTA, GA., AUGUST 23, 1941.

The Doctors' Orders

On the advice of a committee of Fulton county physicians, the opening date of the schools in Atlanta and Fulton county has been deferred until September 15. No parent will complain against this wise move to reduce the menace of the dwindling polio germs to a stage of utter defeat.

The day-by-day reports recently on the epidemic have been increasingly encouraging and indications are that early in September this mysterious blight will have disappeared entirely, after having destroyed too much of the happiness that children gain from the unrestricted freedom of vacations.

Parents and children in this section deserve credit for the voluntary restrictions they adopted to minimize the dangers of infection these last few months. All of them will endorse this wise precaution of the physicians. All of them will appreciate, too, the calm efficiency with which the physicians have handled this epidemic. Quiet warnings that caution should be exercised in the avoidance of possible sources of infection were responsible for the quiet observance of those warnings. The whole crisis was handled without a trace of hysteria and the doctors deserve credit.

Among licenses lately suspended is one, in New England, of a motorist who sped 100 yards through traffic while kissing the girl friend. Taxi, mister?

The Patriot's Dilemma

'Tis a bit confusing to the average man, this publicity from the Department of Interior advising him of his patriotic duty in these times of emergency.

On one hand the honorable secretary of the interior, Harold L. Ickes, is wailing and bemoaning a shortage of gasoline. He has urged the motorists on the Atlantic seaboard to curtail their consumption of the fuel. By cutting out pleasure driving, gasoline needed for the Army and other essential industry can be saved. He has even talked of rationing the fuel.

With the other hand the Interior Department is continuing to flood the eastern and southern states with attractive publicity urging travel about the United States—"Travel to keep Americans fit for patriotic duty," it says. Paul V. McNutt, co-ordinator of all health and welfare activities affecting the national defense, epitomizes his department's work with the slogan: "Travel strengthens America: it builds the nation's health, wealth and unity" and declares it a worth-while contribution to our home defense program.

It is a bit confusing.

However, of course they aren't as bad as they seem. The eastern seaboard is the only section affected by a gasoline shortage. The travel publicity is intended for the entire country, not this section alone. And gasoline men expect the shortage in the east and south to be no more after adjustments in transportation facilities are made and pipelines are constructed. Then there will probably be a concerted effort to get us all to recreate by travel.

It's easier to forgive than it is to forget and it's easier to eat ice cream than it is to do either.

Old Glory

That Americans are still sentimental about the American flag is one of the most encouraging signs in the national life.

A flag with historical background now waves bravely from a pole 70 feet high on grounds of the Battle Hill sanatorium. For this is the flag that waved over the national capitol in Washington during the history-making period when debates raged over the lend-lease bill, national conscription, the extension of the draft, and the appropriation of unprecedented sums of money for defense.

The pensioned edition of Old Glory was obtained for the sanatorium by Congressman Ramspeck, in response to an appeal of a patient at the institution. The flagpole was built with funds subscribed among the patients. But the purchase of a new flag seemed remote until one patient wrote to the congressman. So when the flag was retired from service on Capitol Hill, the congressman saw that it was reconditioned and sent to Battle Hill.

Proud of the flag's historical background, patients now smile happily as the flag bares itself to the winds for a second hitch of service.

Japan encircling herself is perhaps the biggest thing since Nick Altrock dislocated a shoulder in his one-man wrestling exhibition.

Down Mexico Way

Mexico is getting tourists this year, gobs of tourists.

People who once went to Europe or to various islands are going to Mexico.

A recent report of the tremendous increase in tourist business from the United States, says:

"Most of them come by automobile down the Pan-American highway, the only continuous paved road from the border to Mexico City. The Mexicans along the way see them as a tall, fair race from the north, speeding in automobiles, yet stopping to photograph a donkey; a people at once supercilious and arrogant, yet curious and naive; good-natured, yet ever oddly impatient for the butter, the pop, the gas, the air, the check—for service on the run.

"Mr. Typical Tourist, on his first visit to Mexico, is probably in a foreign country for the first time. He speaks little or no Spanish, which robs him of his sang froid. He compensates for it by arrogance, wisecracks and noise; reasons why Mexicans think him crude and clumsy."

All of which is a fair summing up and one which ought to teach something but which probably won't. We are the greatest spending tourists in the world, but the poorest ambassadors. We want ham and eggs for breakfast and steak and French fried for dinner, and grouse if we don't get them. We don't speak foreign languages and instead of being somewhat humble about it, become angry because the other people can't speak English.

Even so, if enough of them keep going down the highway, they will come to like us. We mean well. And some day, if we become aware of things, and begin the teaching of Spanish in grammar schools, we'll make even greater progress.

Go to Mexico if you can. They, too, are a friendly people.

But don't become angry if they object to you going in the house and photographing all the family. It isn't done there, by strangers, any more than it is at home.

And try the Mexican dishes. You can get ham and eggs at home.

And women will probably feel more put out over having to go without silk hose than men will over going to war.

Note on a Passing Day

For 302 years the town of Guilford in Connecticut has been the home of some small industries. Its workers have been craftsmen more than laborers.

No more can Guilford say that it has never known a strike. Eighty employes in the time laboratory of the New Haven Clock Company picketed the laboratory, following the example of about 1,400 employes in the New Haven factory.

Three hundred and two years of history have gone by the boards.

We haven't heard a good Scotch joke since the Hess story—and the point of that one still eludes us.

As a divertissement in the theater of world affairs, we have feats of magic and levitation, such as what holds Mussolini up?

Sufficient unto the day is the evil thereof; but how would closing the gas stations at 7 affect a night session of congress?

At last report the smoke of battle in Russia was thick on three fronts, or one less than a picnic stove.

Georgia Editors Say:

GEORGIA PRISON CAMPS

(From The Brunswick News.)

Once again the shackled ghost of Robert Elliott Burns—"I Am a Fugitive From a Georgia Chain Gang"—goes clanking across the face of Georgia.

At the prison camp at Rising Fawn, long one of the most notorious in the state, Lewis Gordon, Negro convict, is dead, victim of the satanic sweatbox. At the Sparta camp another Negro convict, Flam Bell, is dead, victim of a vicious and inhumane lashing.

Other tales of brutality to prisoners are related by a legislative investigating committee.

Unquestionably these disclosures will come as a shock to every decent Georgian. Under the Rivers administration—and to its credit it must be said that an earnest effort was made to better penological conditions—the sweatbox and lash were supposed to have been abolished. To find that they have returned to popular practice is not only shocking but is outrageous.

What Georgians need to appreciate, but apparently do not, is that when the state assumes responsibility of a prisoner that responsibility extends beyond merely extraction of the debt which the convict owes society. The state assumes, too, a responsibility to the prisoner to rehabiltiate him if possible. That this is not being done, at least in certain camps, is attested to by the disclosures at the Rising Fawn and Sparta camps.

It likely is not enough to insist that the sweatbox, the lash and other instruments of torture of like severity be abolished. The trouble goes deeper than the employment of such barbaric weapons. What we need is a complete understanding of the situation to get at the root of the trouble. That cannot be done so long as the jobs of wardens and guards are passed on to friends as political favors. Our penological system needs to be removed from politics, completely and finally.

WASHINGTON PARADE

By GLADSTONE WILLIAMS

HISTORY OF THE DNIEPER WASHINGTON, Aug. 22.—Press cables from European capitals telling of the reported destruction by the Russians of the huge hydroelectric dam on the Dnieper river near Dnieperopetrovsk in an effort to slow down the advance into the Ukraine bring to mind the important part that great natural barrier has played in the defense of Russia over the centuries.

Military technicians have anticipated from the start of the Russian campaign that the huge dam, the largest in the world at the time it was completed in 1932, would be dynamited and its millions of tons of swirling waters allowed to flood the lowlands of the river if the pressure of German forces threatened the Ukraine.

Now it is reported to have been done. If the dispatches prove to be true, the Dnieper has added to its toll over the centuries thousands of German troops, fleeing Russian peasants and straggling Soviet soldiers who were engulfed in the flood of waters released.

The part the Dnieper has played in past Russian resistance to invasion is illustrated in a highly interesting story told the writer by George H. Houston, former head of the Baldwin Locomotive Works and one of the foremost American engineers. He was one of the American technical experts whose aid was enlisted by the Russian government in building the great Dnieperopetrovsk dam.

After coffer dams were constructed to divert the river from its channel while concrete was being poured for the permanent structure, Mr. Houston and his associates found in the exposed river bed practically every type of military weapon that had been used in a thousand years of European wars. Invading armies for centuries had reached the Dnieper, only to have large segments of their forces destroyed in trying to cross the river.

A MAIN NATURAL BARRIER The stream has constituted one of the main natural barriers against Russian invasion for countless years. The dry river bed left by the coffer dams produced a wealth of material to attest to its past effectiveness. There were spears, chariots, armor, guns and artillery of all ages, mingled with the bones of men and horses falling victims of Russian resistance. Many of the rusty relics were recovered for museum pieces and are said to be on exhibition today at Moscow.

How far destruction of the dam will go in slowing down the present German drive remains to be seen, but military experts expect it to have a tremendous effect, temporarily at least. Flooding of the Dnieper lower regions, it is said, will not only make the terrain untenable for military operations or other purposes for years to come, but it will release considerable Russian forces for defensive action in other sections of the vast battle front.

Equally important, also, destruction of the dam will cause the Germans to lose the main source of electric power generation serving the region. If they ultimately succeed in capturing the Ukraine, exploitation of the area's industrial resources could not be maintained without the power produced by the Dnieperopetrovsk project.

"SCORCHED EARTH" RESISTANCE Confirmation of the reported destruction would be the most striking example yet given of the Russian "scorched earth" policy of resistance—a policy that calls for complete devastation in the path of the Soviet retreat. It is the same policy that brought ruin to Napoleon more than 100 years ago when, upon reaching Moscow, he found only a city of ashes.

Closely linked with reports concerning the Dnieper, Prime Minister Churchill is known to have informed President Roosevelt during their recent historic meeting on the high seas that the Russians, anticipating the possibility of being unable to hold the Ukraine, have been able to move out upwards of 50 per cent of the machine tools implementing their industrial production in the region.

If the Russians have succeeded in preserving this much of their industrial equipment, transferring it far back to other production centers in the Ural mountains, prospects for the war continuing on the eastern front are extended indefinitely.

Since returning to Washington the President has confided to close administration advisors that both he and Mr. Churchill are much more confident now of continued Russian resistance than they ever were.

The Soviets, it develops, had far more reserves in tanks and planes and other military equipment than the British or anyone else realized before the Nazi invasion started. Unless the war takes a turn that cannot now be anticipated, there is every expectation on the part of British and American informed military quarters that it will carry beyond the winter months and into next spring.

A conviction that the Russians will be able to stand up was easily read between the lines of the Churchill-Roosevelt message to Stalin offering to send a military mission to Moscow to discuss measures of British and American co-operation in furnishing war supplies. Since then the President has revealed more of the factors behind the move in his conferences with administration leaders.

SUGGESTS UNDERPASS

Editor, Constitution: Traffic again like Mark Twain and the weather, everybody talks about it, but nobody seems to do anything about it.

I thought Atlanta's traffic situation was about the world's worst until I spent last winter in Miami, where with fighting my way through narrow congested streets and waiting for a drawbridge to raise, in order to let a little sailboat go by, I came to the conclusion that while Atlanta traffic was bad enough it was not really the worst.

Like women who have no children but can always tell those who have how to raise them, allow me, who know very little about the traffic situation to offer a suggestion.

Construct an underpass at Ellis and Cain streets for east and west traffic. Thus giving north and south-bound traffic a continuous flow along Peachtree, the most congested part of the city, from Forsyth street to Harris. These two named streets being on high elevations with a decided drop on each side, the cost of an underpass could not be considered as a prohibited expense. The county is now making an experiment with a LeTourneau overpass, so let the city consider an underpass at these two points and dig in. J. N. MERRITT.

OBJECTS TO PEGLER.

Editor, Constitution: It has long been a mystery to me why Westbrook Pegler could see not the slightest good in anything or anybody. Now the cat is out of the bag! To prove he is right in his uncompromizing hatred of President Roosevelt, Pegler quotes Huey Long!

Well, we get our ideas from strange places sometimes, and if Mr. Pegler has the Long and Wheeler ideas of hating everything and everybody with different aspects and different ideas, that is his privilege. But there is a limit to the "freedom of speech and the press" when published views of well-known public figures endanger the nation with their personal spleens.

Many of us believed that Hitler was right when he first came to power in Germany. He was right for a while, but since he has broken every pledge and treaty, who but a moron could think he is still right?

Many of us thought Lindbergh was right at first, and he was right in trying to get this nation to build up its air force long ago, but who but a Wheelerite can say he is right now by thinking we can appease Hitler, allow him to rule Europe and Asia and remain safe from his attacks when he has built millions of bombers for that purpose?

And so we come back to Westbrook Pegler. Many of us think he is right, and he is right when he attacks certain evils in our body politic, but when he persistently attacks the person, and everything the person does—good or bad—then he is catering to the baser instincts of his readers and is not an asset to the national news forum.

REPLIES TO WHEELER

Editor, Constitution: My daughter, Miss June Maxwell, recently received one of Senator Wheeler's celebrated broadsides dealing with the international situation. Inasmuch as June is only seven years of age and seldom, if ever, bothers with such problems as national defense and the preservation of human liberty, she has asked me to reply for her.

Now, Senator, a rumpus is the last thing the Maxwells like to go in for. Despite all this, Senator, it seems that there is a guy over in Europe, aided and abetted by several lesser guys, who does not approve of people and nations leading the kind of life we like.

If you can convince me that little seven-year-old girls and boys are entirely safe here and all over the world, and if you can convince me that the bombs this old meany drops on unfortified cities will always hit nothing but military objectives and not blow into eternity helpless little girls like June, then I will use my limited influence in the cause that you and German Eagle, Lindbergh, so loudly espouse.

Heaven knows I have not agreed with everything President Roosevelt has done. I did not even vote for him the last time he ran, but when there is a mad dog loose in the community, I believe it behooves somebody to put him out of his misery. Even if the mad dog happens not to be operating in my part of town, I do not think it hurts me to keep my gun loaded and my doors barricaded. I am willing to fight for your right to view this matter as you see fit and to express your views, but I swear, Senator, I do not see how you and Lindbergh can be so childishly optimistic as to believe that our country can ever be immune to the ravages of the rampaging mad dog who has either crushed or "embraced to death" all of the European continent.

I feel compelled to turn a deaf ear to your eloquent pleas for national disunity and eventful ruination. J. Q. MAXWELL.

FAIR ENOUGH

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

The opinions expressed by Mr. Pegler in this column are his own and do not necessarily represent the opinion of The Atlanta Constitution.

Certain Discoveries WASHINGTON, Aug. 22 — By right I ought to be having the jumps over the state of the nation, the war, and all, but the business of viewing with alarm is in competent hands, and, anyway, I want to know whether this war emergency is to be used as a sort of general amnesty for all who have been exploiting not only the Nazi war but the war on want as well. Long before Hitler went crazy, our President told us that we were engaged in a war against want and there was an implied promise that there should be no profiteering in the struggle, no exploitation of the great emergency for private gain in wealth or power. Recalling President Roosevelt's first inaugural address, I remember that it would have been almost heretical to suggest that anyone could be so low as to impose on the situation, and the noble mood of the people, with greedy or ambitious motives.

Since then certain discoveries have made me cynical, but I still hold that wrong done in the name of recovery and reform should not be allowed to go by default just because we are moving into another war.

Now I have just been going through a book the size of a New York city directory, containing the transcript of an old trial of Umbrella Mike Boyle, the boss of the electricians' union in Chicago, who is so powerful there that he can threaten the whole city with paralysis just on his own say-so.

This Man Boyle He once raised all the bridges over the Chicago river and left them up, completely blockading these vital public works, the property of the whole people, or threatened to do so, I disremember which, to show his power over a small group of slightly skilled men and thus over the city.

In New York, his opposite number, Harry Van Arsdale, made a similar demonstration for similar reasons only recently when he pulled a general strike of electricians on construction jobs, including war construction at the Brooklyn yard, and blacked out Broadway at night.

I just hold that no one man, nor any relatively small group of men, should be allowed to possess this power to grab any community by the throat and that the national government, which now rules us all, has a duty to break this power of the few. This power was acquired under cover of the idealism want and whenever the mists in which we groped in the war on thinned out a little and some of us began to observe dark forms up to dirty work we got a few more grenades of that idealistic gas to obscure their doing.

Just lately this crook, Mike Boyle, of Chicago, has been blockading the installation of certain lights in a factory which is intended to build airplane engines for the Army, because he doesn't approve the company which manufactured the lights. In calling him merely a crook I am almost flattering him, because the United States circuit court of appeals once denounced him as "a highwayman, a betrayer of labor, a leech on commerce."

I have mentioned this before, but since then I have gone through this big book and at last have found what I was after.

Found The Data I was looking for the part where it was brought out that as long ago as 1915 Boyle was blockading the products of certain manufacturers of electrical switchboards to the advantage of other manufacturers, all in the sacred name of labor, and that he owned stock in one of the favored companies. This occurred in the testimony of Roy O. Samson, a special agent of the Department of Justice, who helped prepare the prosecution in the course of which it was shown that Umbrella Mike had shaken down many builders, one of them for $20,000.

The agent swore that another defendant in the same case told him that he had turned over to Mike Boyle $19,000 worth of stock in the States Electric Company, and that by reason of that interest, Mike was able to throw "a great deal of work" to the company.

Not even Van Arsdale, red-hot unioneer that he is, and with a high tolerance for crooks in unions, can apologize for his colleague in the same international, Umbrella Mike. I mentioned Mike to Van Arsdale one day during a little conference and Van Arsdale turned his palms up, shrugged, and said he would prefer not to discuss Mike at all. However, Van Arsdale, in telling me of the recantation of two men whom he had been convicted of shooting in a union battle, clean forgot to mention that the two recanting brothers first got $15,000 out of the union treasury. So maybe it is just one of their ethics to speak no evil of one another lest too much truth come out and they lose their power.

How do we know Mike's motives now in disallowing the product of one gift of stock in an interested competitor and was able to throw "a great deal of work" to his own company?

What is the point of all this, says you?

For God's sake, that is the very point of it. We all realize that such a man holds all this power over our second greatest city and we ask humbly, what of it?

Post Office Stumped.

Lack of a post office in a New Jersey township caused a letter sent from Hungary to be delayed eight months. The letter, addressed to Mrs. Anna Rozner Boxman, Pennsauken Township, was sent by Mrs. Boxman's sister in Hungary. It arrived but because there is no Pennsauken postoffice, it was stamped "address insufficient" and returned to the sender.

ONE WORD MORE

By RALPH McGILL.

THE WAR OUTLOOK WASHINGTON, D. C., Aug. 22.—Lord Beaverbrook's appearance in Washington, acting for London on the lend-lease bill, does not at all mean that England is planning an invasion of Germay, a source close to the White House said here today.

England is not yet able to make an invasion and does not plan one. If Germany thinks so, that suits England. She hopes the Germans will continue to fear it, but doubts if she will.

What England is concerned with is maintaining her far-flung armies and navies and with initiating a campaign in Africa while carrying on an aerial bombardment of Germany's resources.

She is not as well prepared to invade the continent as Germany is to invade the islands.

The sources also reveal that President Roosevelt, far from making any commitments to enter the war or to put the Navy in the war, was not even asked to do so. The President is reported to have told his cabinet and the senate committee that he was well aware that he could not, as President, make any commitments and that Churchill was well aware of it.

All he did do was to carry out the policy as confirmed by congress in the lend-lease bill which established this country's position as an opponent of Hitler and as a supporter of the British position in the war.

He did join in the eight points, which constitute a goal for all free peoples everywhere. These points he did commit himself to as a citizen and as the President. They nowhere commit this country to war.

OUR INTELLIGENCE It further is revealed that the President and some of his staff believe Japan now will remain quiet until Russia's ability definitely is determined.

The President is revealed as believing also that the French situation will "work itself out." This view is not concurred in by all his cabinet and advisers. The minority believes Japan may move at an early date and that the French cannot be depended upon.

The President is more optimistic.

More and more, however, those who have been dubious about the President's war and foreign policy are coming around in admiration of his knowledge and his bold actions. They are saying that his policy is sound and has been from the start. Only the diehards such as Wheeler, and those isolationist Republicans who have been accused, by their own commentators, of "selfish and ignoble actions," continue to deny him honesty and sincerity.

The Russians themselves, so Churchill is said to have told the President, did not believe they long would be able to retain the Ukraine, the Black Sea ports and even Leningrad.

The Russian morale is good and the Russians do not believe loss of these points will mean the loss of the war. They believe they can form a line of battle which will keep the German armies in Russia all winter and even into the summer of 1942.

England and Russia know that merely keeping the German armies there, even if they are in possession of much of Russia, is an important victory.

As long as Russia has an army intact, Germany cannot turn her back upon that army. Even though the Germans have driven the Russians back to the Ural mountains, the Germans still must face them and keep them there.

That is why this country and England must assist Russia. It is not at all, as some foolish ones are falsely saying, that England and the United States claim Russia a democracy, or that Russia, except indirectly, is fighting for democracy.

THE AZORES The same sources say that Germany may, if winter finds Russia still resisting, turn then to Portugal and to Spain.

Both nations would surrender at the first request and threat. Germany would make the request so as to obtain bases for the Atlantic campaign of the winter against English shipping.

Once Germany does this, the Azores will become important bases, vital to this country and to England.

It is said that, should Germany attempt to occupy them, the English fleet is pledged to intercept that invasion and stop it. England then would occupy the islands. After the occupation the Americans would take over, or, as has been done in Iceland, occupancy would be a joint job for the English and this country.

All this explains why the President could say, when he returned from his conference with Churchill, that he did not believe we were any nearer a shooting war than we had been before. Believing that Japan will not make an immediate move, and that the French problem possibly may be worked out, making unnecessary a forceful occupation of Martinique, he could see us still out of a shooting war.

He could say forcefully, however, that this country is in the war, and that it has a war to win. And he could speak out against those who have played politics with national defense, against those who have harmed Army morale for the sake of their own political ambitions, against those who think only of this country as a place to live comfortably without being willing to assist that country and work for it.

All this adds up as the most accurate estimate of administration opinion, obtained from completely reliable sources. They contradict in entirety the deliberate falsehoods and misrepresentations as to "commitments" and "secret treaties" alleged to have been made by the President.

Another Letter From a Bald-Headed Dad to His Red-Headed Daughter

By ROBERT QUILLEN.

My Dear Louise:

Your flaming patriotism makes you inclined to jump on everything and everybody who doesn't share your zeal, and I'm afraid your resentment of disloyalty will lead you to injustice if you don't watch your step.

I'm not criticizing your attitude. I'd rather have you too fiercely patriotic than not patriotic enough. I merely wish to caution you against condemning an entire family because it has one black sheep.

Several times of late, angered by newspaper reports of the evil done by spies and saboteurs, you have expressed a desire to manhandle "these darned foreigners."

That kind of talk is dangerous and unjust. A smart man once said, "You can't indict a whole nation." And I remind you again that any judgment of a group or class is beyond to be unfair. Any good thing or bad thing you may say about "young people" or "old people" or "church members" or "Democrats" or "foreigners" may fit a few of the group; but it can't apply to all, for no two are alike.

There are dangerous foreigners among us, some of them naturalized citizens, who are doing all they can to harm us. Whether they work in secret or openly, they are a deadly menace and must be suppressed.

And there are others who don't even call themselves Americans, but cling to the name they used in their native land, yet exercise the privilege of citizens and organize to influence government policies and frighten timid officials.

These you may criticize as you will, and no American will argue with you.

But there are foreign-born residents, not yet able to speak English without an accent, whose loyalty and love for America are beyond the capacity of many natives.

Make your best bow to Ortolani, Italian consular agent at Fort Worth, who said he would rather stay in an American concentration camp than be sent back to Italy. He has two sons in the United States armed forces, and you will find no better American than he.

There are many like him, and a blanket condemnation of foreigners is a cruel injustice to all of them.

It isn't the place of birth that makes a good American, but love of liberty and loyalty to America and American ideals.

Love, DAD.

If No Materials, Then No Jobs; How Restrictions Work Out

It's an old saying that you can't make an omelet without breaking eggs. Which may be translated to mean that the government can't restrict this and that without playing the devil with many people's jobs.

For instance, requiring substantial payments in installment-plan buying. Designed to keep wage earners on government jobs, perhaps, from running hog-wild on their big pay and plunging into debt.

Fine! If I'd been required to pay cash or half-down for everything I ever bought, I wouldn't have a house or a car or an electric refrigerator or a radio or an eight-day, self-winding clock. My home would be almost as bare as a mountaineer's cabin.

But I'd have money! Oh, think of the money I'd have! Unless I'd put it in one of those banks which exploded when times got hard. Or seven per cent mortgage bonds, underwritten (whatever that means) and sold by the big banks. And which suddenly went sour. At least, I have the house—or all of it the mortgage company doesn't own—and what's left of the car.

But what I started out thinking about was workmen and salesmen.

If a fellow can't buy a used car for $50 down—which is all he can raise—or an electric icebox or a suite of furniture for even less—maybe he'll just have to stop buying. And when there are no buyers what's the use of salesmen? An employer can't afford to pay a salesman for looking out of the window. And if the salesman works on commission looking out of the window won't buy his wife any groceries.

This is a tangled-up world, with all of us dependent upon one another in some way.

I wish I had time to straighten it out—but I've got to get a haircut and hurry home to put on a clean shirt and go out to dinner. So I reckon I'll let Mr. Ickes and Mr. Henderson take charge.

Wounded—to the Bone

Your columnist is deeply humiliated—and defeated.

For years he had boasted he'd never been bitten by a dog, except in the course of innocent amusement, when he had the privilege of biting back, if so disposed.

He has bragged that he could open the gate and walk into the fortress of the most, reputedly, vicious canine in North America and be greeted as a friend.

But he has been assaulted, attacked and gnawed on by a dog.

To make the humiliation doubly keen, the attacker was a dachshund—and a lady dachshund at that. For he has been ever a stalwart defender of that weird, underslung cross between a trained seal and a blacksnake.

This occurred at a dog farm. Kennels, he believes, is the correct term.

He had met this sweet and gentle feminine canine and had assumed they were friends. Then he went for a stroll past the other dogs' open-air apartments.

He felt a nip on his ankle. Pretty sharp nip. He looked down—and there was his lady friend putting on the pressure. And plenty.

She hadn't barked. She hadn't growled. She had merely slipped up from behind and attempted to chew off his foot.

"You got too close to her new puppies," explained the proprietor of this dog farm.

"In that case," responded your columnist, "all I can do is to apologize to her." Which he did.

After which, at a safe distance from the puppies, his vicious assailant jumped into his lap and wanted to kiss. But no! He is distrustful of ladies who are so temperamental.

His 'Fatherland.'

Government has ruled that a foreign-born young man registering for military service may ignore questions about any changes in the government of his native country.

That means, if he was born a Czech he may register as a Czech, regardless of what Hitler has done. That applies to other conquered or "protected" nations.

What about Germans? It's been some 23 years since the Allies licked Germany—or thought they had. A good many young Germans—boys—have come over since that war. Not Nazis—because Hitler hadn't been thought of then. Many of them Jewish—who have no reason to worship Hitler or his rule. Reports indicate quite a lot of them would like to enlist and maybe have a chance at a shot at him.

It may be, as some writers insist, that all Germany is Nazi, though that's hard to believe.

But I happen to know a number—not many, because Atlanta hasn't much foreign population—of German-born folk who hate everything remotely connected with Hitler and the Nazi regime. But they can't talk—except to an intimate friend—because they have kinsfolk back in the dear old Fatherland who might land in a concentration camp if a third cousin in America expressed his views.

System of reducing? One reads in the Augusta Herald that Mrs. Jessie Daniel Ames is executive director of the Association of Southern Women for the Prevention of Lunching.

CHATTAHOOCHEE COCKTAIL—City officials yesterday mixed water in varying stages of purification as they inspected Atlanta's new 33-million-gallon-a-day addition to the filter plant, and finally got good water. The beakers show the river water before and after filtering. Left to right, holding the vials are Alderman Lester R. Brewer, chairman of council's water committee; Judge Robert Carpenter, of the criminal court of Fulton county, and W. Zode Smith, general manager of waterworks.

City Begins Tests on New Water Filter

Tests were begun yesterday on the Atlanta waterworks department's new 33,000,000-gallons-a-day filter plant at Hemphill pumping station, W. Zode Smith, general manager of waterworks, said.

The new filter supplements the 39,000,000-gallons-a-day plant already in operation and will equalize the load which the old plant has been forced to carry for the past several years.

The new addition cost about $350,000 and was financed through the 10 per cent water collections set aside by act of the Georgia legislature for capital improvements for the system.

Smith pointed out that no new filter plant additions can be made at the Hemphill station and that if others become mandatory other sites must be sought. The city's normal consumption of water is about 72,000,000.

F.D.R. Authorizes Naval Public Works Spending

WASHINGTON, Aug. 22.—(AP)—President Roosevelt signed today a bill authorizing the Navy Department to proceed with construction of approximately $244,000,000 of public works at various shore facilities in the United States and its possessions.

State To Let Contracts on 10 Projects

Estimated $611,156 Will Be Awarded on September 12.

The State Highway Board announced yesterday that contracts would be let September 12 on 10 projects costing an estimated $611,156. Board Chairman W. E. Wilburn said additional contracts for projects costing an estimated $800,000 would be let September 19.

He added the board had adopted the policy of holding smaller and more frequent lettings. He predicted this would save the state money and aid small contractors.

The projects on which will be opened September 12 are:

Jasper: 2.873 miles of surface treated road beginning about two miles from Monticello and extending toward Farrar.

Jackson: 5.659 miles of concrete paving on the Gainesville-Jefferson road beginning about one mile south of the Hall-Jackson county line and extending toward Jefferson.

Washington: .108 mile of concrete paving and .346 mile of double surface treatment on the Tennille-Wrightsville road beginning in Tennille.

Warren: 3.096 miles of surface treatment on the Warrenton-Camak road, beginning at State Route 12 and ending in Camak.

Bleckley: 5.220 miles of grading and double surface treatment on the Cochran-Dublin road beginning at the east city limits of Cochran and extending toward Dublin.

Polk: 3.452 miles of grading and double surface treatment on crushed stone base on Cedartown, Ga.-Piedmont, Ala. road beginning in Cedartown.

Monroe: 3.853 miles of grading and double surface treatment on the Forsyth-Juliette road beginning 3.3 miles from Forsyth and extending toward Juliette.

Sumter: 3.408 miles of double surface treatment beginning at state route 49 and extending toward state route 27.

Warren-Jefferson: 8.278 miles of graded road and one bridge at Reedy creek on the Thomson-Wrens road beginning 10 miles south of Thomson and extending to state route 4 in Wrens.

Crawford: 3.822 miles of limerock base with double surface treatment on the Reynolds-Roberta road beginning about 1,000 feet north of the Flint river and extending toward Roberta.

Jurors Probe 'Meddling' in Police Affairs

Officials Questioned on Vice Reports; Deeper Probe Seen.

The Fulton grand jury yesterday again investigated charges of "political meddling" in the administration of the city police department, and also questioned officials on reports of vice along certain sections of Central avenue and adjacent streets.

Police Chief Hornsby, Alderman G. Dan Bridges, chairman of the police committee, and Alderman L. O. Moseley were called by the jury at its session yesterday morning.

It was understood questioning of these officials followed closely along the lines of the previous grand jury which condemned "meddling" in the administration of police affairs by city politicians.

Chief Hornsby told the jury that some of the police officers refuse to co-operate with him, it was understood. Indications were that the grand jury plans to go further into this investigation before its presentments are returned at the end of August.

Complaints of conditions in the Central avenue section, reaching the grand jury by letter, formed the basis of questioning on this subject by the jurors, it was reported.

Prior to appearing before the jury, Chief Hornsby said officers in radio car No. 24, on duty in that area 24 hours per day, had made a total of 1,800 arrests in less than three months.

Atlantans Leave For Bermuda Base

Atlanta's first detachment of skilled workers departed yesterday from the Terminal station en route to New York, where they will leave tomorrow by boat for Bermuda to build the gigantic $24,000,000 United States Naval base there.

D. L. Few, Atlanta engineer and superintendent of construction on the project, headed the group of 90 men, ranging in ages from 20 to 60 years and handpicked from 1,000 applications.

Few said the construction company holding the contract for the project expects to employ approximately 3,000 men for 15 to 24 months, and as far as possible draw them from the southeast because climatic conditions here are much like Bermuda.

State Protests Suggestion of I.C.C. Examiner

Claims Rails Getting Too Much Attention, Public Too Little.

A recommendation of an Interstate Commerce Commission examiner that the northwestern portion of Georgia be excluded from the eastern time zone drew an official protest from the state yesterday that too much consideration had been given to the railroads and too little to the general public.

The State Public Service Commission said it was clear from the report filed by Examiner Thomas E. Pyne after a public hearing here that "the preponderant weight has been given to the junction and division point of the common carriers by railroad and little, if any, weight to the convenience of commerce."

In a 15-page brief taking exception to Pyne's recommendation, the commission insisted that the ICC should follow recently enacted Georgia legislation placing the entire state in the eastern time zone, and Walter R. McDonald, commission chairman, urged all northwest Georgia cities to join in the protest to the federal agency.

Pyne's Proposals.

The proposal advanced by Pyne would make the western boundary of the eastern time zone run south from the Tennessee line through Blue Ridge, Canton, Marietta, skirt Atlanta and then continue westward through Newnan, LaGrange and West Point to the Alabama line.

In contending this recommendation "failed to give due consideration to commercial and economic conditions," the state commission said that railroads "are playing a more unimportant part in the life" of Georgia communities.

"The rail carriers," the brief continued, "apparently are endeavoring to completely disassociate themselves from the lives of the local communities if we are to judge by the flood of petitions . . . seeking authority to discontinue the operation of passenger trains serving such local communities."

Complete Accord.

However, the commission said the railroads were in complete accord with representatives of the state in wishing the entire state placed on eastern time, provided the ICC extended the railroads the necessary operating exceptions.

The commission asserted that Pyne's recommendations "disregards the needs of the military establishments" in the state. It pointed out that Fort McPherson and Fourth Corps Area headquarters in Atlanta would be in different time zones, as well as Fort Oglethorpe and other Army camps.

"It is clear," the commission said, "that the order as proposed will require the use of two times by the headquarters' organizations, or a disregard of the time zone as fixed if confusion within that Corps Area is to be avoided."

Engineer Dies Of Heart Attack

COLUMBUS, Ga., Aug. 22.—(AP) H. H. Hall, 64, Central of Georgia railroad engineer, died in a hospital in Albany last night after he had been stricken suddenly ill at the railroad station there Wednesday morning.

Hall, who has been employed by the Central for 35 years, had taken a freight train to Albany and was about to leave on the return run to Columbus when he suffered a heart attack. He had left the cab and was oiling the engine at the time.

Hall has resided in Columbus all his life. He was a Mason and a member of the Brotherhood of Railway Engineers.

Survivors include his wife and three children.

He was brought to Columbus Thursday night.

Funeral services will be at 10:30 a. m. Saturday.

Families Denied Water; No Meters Are Available

Some 25 families in the Mount Zion church section of Hapeville are being denied water from that city's system because no meters are available, it was announced yesterday in the city clerk's office.

Some 50 new homes have recently been built in Hapeville but water may not be available to them for the duration of the emergency because new meters, ordered since April, can not be obtained from manufacturers engaged in filling defense orders.

Four Adrift in Cruiser Sighted by Air Line Pilot

CLEVELAND, Aug. 22.—(AP)—Four persons adrift in a cabin cruiser off Vermilion, Ohio, were rescued today after an airliner pilot noticed their plight and radioed for help.

SOS light flashes from the cruiser caught the eye of Captain John Treher, United Air Lines pilot, who radioed the Coast Guard.

Those on the boat were Mr. and Mrs. C. D. Reding, of Elyria, Ohio, and another couple.

Recruiting Scouts Will Visit Registrants Classified as A-1

Recruiting agencies of the regular Army, Navy, Marine Corps and Coast Guard soon will begin personal solicitation of Georgia's class 1-A draft registrants in an effort to enlist as many as possible for regular three and four-year terms in the armed forces of the nation, it was reported yesterday at state selective service headquarters.

Georgia's 188 local boards are being asked to furnish lists of 1-A men to state headquarters, which will in turn send them to recruiting agencies.

The men will then be solicited personally and by mail for regular terms of service.

No registrant will be solicited after he has been ordered to report for physical examination or induction, and the recruiting agencies will receive the names at least a month before the registrant's physical examination is scheduled.

Under the quota and credit system now in operation by selective service and the recruiting agencies, local boards will be given credit for all men in each section who enlist voluntarily.

4 Public Service Men Leave for Utility Meeting

Four representatives of the Georgia Public Service Commission left yesterday to attend a meeting of the National Association of Railroad and Utility Commissioners in St. Paul, Minn.

Accompanying Walter McDonald, chairman of the commission, were Matt McWhorter and James A. Perry, members, and A. O. Randall, secretary. The meeting will begin Tuesday of next week and continue through Friday.

THE NEW COVENANT.

Sunday's lesson, Hebrews 8:1 through 10:18, interprets the new covenant in the priesthood of Jesus. The golden text: "Being made perfect, He became the author of eternal salvation unto all them that obey Him," Hebrews 5:9.

The priesthood of Jesus was not only fulfilled on earth by gifts and sacrifices, but is now being fulfilled in heaven by intercession and mediation—the old covenant which was broken, being superseded by the new covenant which is better.

The sacrifice of Jesus brought eternal redemption, and His intercession at the Father's right hand assures divine mercy for all who desire to draw near unto Him. Jesus was the High Priest who both officiated in the sacrifices and offered Himself as the Sacrifice. Thus He brought to pass "the good things to come" as prophesied and prefigured in the Old Testament. The sanctuary in which He sacrificed was not the symbolical tent of meeting at Sinai nor the great temples of Moriah, but "the greater and more perfect tabernacle," even the heavenly Holy of Holies.

The blood of goats and calves was offered as a symbol in the earlier dispensation, but Jesus, "through His own blood, entered in once for all into the Holy Place." His sacrifice was not annual, as with the Jewish priest of old, but once only and for all.

"The blood of Christ is efficacious. This is owing chiefly and supremely to the dignity of His person. He is the Son of God as well as the Son of man. His blood possesses all the worth that Divinity can give it. We may well believe, therefore, that it can cleanse from all sin," says Pendleton.

The redemption of Jesus is eternal—"And I give unto them eternal life; and they shall never perish, neither shall any man pluck them out of My hand," John 10:28.

The word "covenant" in the Bible is designated by a Greek word which in the classics means a "will," and a will only comes into effect through the death of the testator. The new covenant is, indeed, Christ's will, and its validity is due to His death—His voluntary death on the cross as the atoning sacrifice for the sins of the world. Thus, through His sacrificial death on Calvary, He becomes the mediator of the new covenant.

Who may share in this new covenant? "Whosoever will, let him take the water of life freely." "For God so loved the world that He gave His only begotten Son, that whoever believeth on Him, should not perish, but have everlasting life." "As I live, saith the Lord God, I have no pleasure in the death of the wicked; but that the wicked turn from his way and live. Turn ye, turn ye from your evil ways, for why will ye die?"

The Secret of the Marshbanks

Fran Decides To Give Up Kelly Coates; Cherry Makes Plans for College

By KATHLEEN NORRIS

Synopsis of preceding chapters:

Charlotte (Cherry) Rawlings, an orphan at Saint Dorothea's convent school since she was seven, knows almost nothing of her early history but has gradually realized that like other girls at the school, she has no family. She questions whether she has the right to her father's name. Judge Judson Marshbank and Emma Haskell, housekeeper for wealthy Mrs. Porteous Porter in San Francisco, are her guardians. When Cherry is 20 Emma gets her a secretarial job with Mrs. Porter, but Cherry goes first to the Marshbank mansion, meeting the judge's young wife Fran and his niece, Amy, daughter of his brother Fred, now dead. Life at Mrs. Porter's becomes monotonous, and Cherry is thrilled when Kelly Coates, an artist, horseback riding with Fran as Cherry is motoring with her employer, stops to talk with them. He sends her a box of candy and she is jealous when he brings Fran to a party at Mrs. Porter's. Emma tells Cherry that her sister Charlotte was Cherry's mother. Kelly takes Cherry along so Fran can visit his Sausalito studio and Cherry senses that he tells Cherry despondently that Fran has promised the judge she will not see him any more. Mrs. Porter dies, leaving Cherry $1,500, and she learns from Marshbank that his brother Fred, who was Amy's father, was also her father. While still upset by this revelation, she phones Kelly. He takes her to his studio and she begins by telling him that although Emma is her aunt, she has always been cold and unresponsive.

INSTALLMENT XVIII.

He glanced at his watch. "It's 10:10. I'm going to run you home.

They went out into the darkness to the car. "There's a divine moon and what we'll see from the bridge will probably keep us there all night. Now I'll tell you, Cherry," he went on, driving down the hill, "here's what I'd like to suggest to you: You'll have bad moments over this thing, no question about it. But whenever you get down, say to yourself, 'It's my business to be giving, not taking; I'm the mother type, mothering all mankind,' and it'll buck you up."

"It does buck me up; it bucks me up just to say it," she admitted gratefully. "It seems to—to open doors for me. Whenever I think I haven't anything I'll remember that, and give something to somebody. But, Kelly," she went on a little shyly, "wouldn't that apply to you too? I mean in caring—in being in love—where it makes you so unhappy."

"Yep, but I'm the taking type," he answered soberly. "Most men are, and lots of women. The other type is rare. Rare!"

"You're not just saying that to comfort me, Kelly?"

"You know in your heart I'm not."

He stopped at the gloomy Porter mansion and got out and went up to the door with her.

"You'll never know what you've done for me tonight," Cherry said in the dark columns of the entrance.

"You did something for me too. I've been seeing blue devils all day. Listen," he went on in a brighter tone, "here's a bargain. If you get too down, you telephone me, and if I'm going crazy any time I'll telephone you, and we'll walk it off together. There are swell walks up over the hills over my way. How about it?"

"I would think it the nicest thing that ever happened to me," she said in a low tone, her eyes shining up at him in the gloom, her figure lost in the shadows.

"It's a go, then."

"There's only one thing. If we do that then I mighn't ever have any troubles," Cherry explained, her hand in his.

"You know what you ought to get for that!" His arm held her lightly, his lips brushed her forehead and he was gone.

"So you start your collegiate career next week?" the judge asked Cherry as she and Amy, murmuring apologies, slid into their seats 15 minutes after luncheon had been announced.

"I start coaching," Cherry answered. "And then, if they let me in, I enter regular classes next September."

Her radiant, eager look went around the table and met with a response from everyone except the stern-faced old woman who sat at the judge's left. His mother accepted Cherry because she had no choice. Amy had grown to adore Cherry; Fran liked her in her indifferent way; the judge was openly fond of her, anxious for all to go well with her. The elder Mrs. Marshbanks could only fall in line. The judge had said to her upon one of the first occasions of Cherry's coming to the house, "You know who she is, of course?" to which his mother had returned frigidly, "Certainly!" and had asked in return, "Does Amy know?"

"Certainly not," the judge had returned promptly, and that had closed the subject for the time. But he had known and Cherry presently came to realize that her presence in the Marshbanks mansion was heartily resented by the old dowager. Curiously, the effect of this attitude was to stimulate her.

"After all," the girl would think on the few occasions when she came into contact with the older woman, "you're my grandmother, you know, and you can't help it and I can't help it!"

Emma had gone with her kitten to the country now, and Cherry was to leave for Palo Alto in a few days, to take possession of a room in the house of one Mrs. Pringle, and to begin summer school work and to do a certain amount of coaching so as to be able to enter college as a regular student in the fall. On this particular day she was going down in the limousine with Fran, who had a call or two to make in Atherton and Menlo Park, and who would pick Cherry up for the return trip after Cherry had introduced herself to her new landlady and inspected her quarters.

When she and Fran were in the car, Fran said presently, "Run the window down, will you, Cherry? It's warm?"

"No, I want to speak to Rousseau. Rousseau, go the old road, will you, please?" Fran asked, when she could speak to the chauffeur. "For I promised I'd stop at the antique shop."

The young Frenchman did not turn his head. "But he nodded slightly.

"No, wait a minute, I think we'll do that after we leave Miss Rawlings in Palo Alto," Fran changed it suddenly.

"Now what's she about?" Cherry thought. "She's meeting someone!

"I've not seen Kelly Coates for weeks," Fran presently said thoughtfully, as if reading Cherry's mind. "He telephones, but I haven't happened to be in. I like him, too."

"He likes you," Cherry said daringly. And at the same time her almost imperceptible nod indicated Rousseau, quite within hearing. Fran's answering faint nod and shrug suggested that it didn't matter what the chauffeur heard, if indeed he could hear anything.

"You see Kelly now and then, don't you?" Fran asked.

"Now and then."

"Lately?"

"The day we closed up Mrs. Porter's house—that was day before yesterday—I saw him then," Cherry said, omitting any mention of the Sausalito visit. "We walked a little while in the Presidio."

"You like him a lot, don't you?" the soft, hoarse voice with its hidden notes of laughter and of tears asked simply.

Cherry felt the blood in her face.

"I—guess so," she admitted, swallowing.

"Too bad," Fran said absently. "I'm sorry about Kelly! I was very unhappy when I married Jud," she presently went on, "and I told him that although I didn't love him as I might love some man some day—he's twenty-two years older than I am, you know . . ."

"But that's all the more reason," Fran began again, after a pause, "why I should play fair with him." She paused. "Cherry, I wonder if you will do something for me."

"I'd be so glad, Mrs. Marshbanks!" Cherry, always responsive to this woman's strange charm and with her fascination increased by Kelly's feeling, was thrilled to the marrow of her bones at the little overture of friendship.

"To begin with," Fran said with a direct smile from under her silky black bangs, and ultramodern hat, "don't call me 'Mrs. Marshbanks! It sounds as if I were an elderly aunt."

"Fran, then. What can I do?"

"I'm trying to think it out, exactly," Fran answered. "I think I mean that I'd like to be a friend of Kelly's, Cherry, and help him see my position. If I were free," Fran went on thoughtfully, "I'd marry him. But I'm not free. You see, Cherry, two years ago—more than two years ago, when we'd been married—oh, perhaps 18 months or so—I told Jud that I wanted to live my own life. I didn't want to be his wife any more—suddenly I went restless and unhappy, and it was that. I didn't want to be his wife!"

"I—didn't suspect anything, of course!" Cherry stammered.

"Well, don't look so scared!" Fran said, with her careless half-laugh that had no mirth in it. "That's the situation far oftener than you think. And Jud understands—there's no one in the world so generous to anything small or mean in somebody else as Jud is!"

"Oh, I believe that!" Cherry said fervently.

"And for that reason," Fran pursued, "perhaps I'm a little less scrupulous than I might be about—I won't say flirting, I hate the word! But about friendships with men, liking men. I can't help it. I've made . . ." And to Cherry's astonishment the dark eyes so near her own were suddenly misting. "I've made such a mess of my life so far," Fran said, "that going to play the game now."

"So if you can," Fran concluded, as Cherry continued to watch her in silent fascination, "put that to Kelly. He likes you. He thinks you're interesting. And you see, nowdays I don't see at all. I promised Jud I'd not see him unless it was unavoidable, and it is avoidable. That day you were with us—the day at Sausalito, the day it rained, was the—no, that wasn't the last time," Fran interrupter herself to say honestly, "but at least I don't know when I'll see him again, and if you could rather put it to him that it's from a—well, a sense of honor, it would help. You don't think I have a sense of honor, do you?" She asked, with a careless, oblique smile in Cherry's direction.

"I know you have!" Cherry was ashamed of her own suspicions of Fran.

Fran said nothing more, and Cherry was silent, too, looking out of the car windows at countryside that was growing richer and more beautiful with every mile.

"This is your place; it looks comfortable enough," Fran said as the car stopped. "Ask Rousseau to go to the gas station in Atherton, will you, and we'll find out there where the Rasmussen place is. And we'll be back for you at five."

Cherry, delightfully thrilled, descended at a green hedge not too well trimmed, a stretch of lawn in need of cutting and a wide, square wooden house generously balconied with most of its many windows opened to the sweet spring air. Mrs. Pringle, large and untidy, took her up to her room, which was large, too, and if not untidy, somewhat bare in effect after the luxurious perfection of the Marshbanks home. But Cherry loved it at sight. It was her own, and when she took possession of it a day or two later she would be, for the first time in her life, free and independent, spending her leisure and her allowance as she liked.

When she had expressed herself as immensely pleased with it, they went downstairs and looked into a dining room with one large table and four small ones in it, already set for dinner. At this point a tall boy dashed in, shouted that he had to find a blue paper, shouted further that he had "a four o'clock," and was forcefully arrested by his mother's big hand to be introduced to Miss Rawlings, who on Saturday was coming down to stay.

"Hello, Miss Rawlings," said George Pringle, all but breaking the bones of Cherry's right hand. "I'm late and it's mid-terms; I'll be flunked out next week and then we'll talk!"

August 23rd and September 22nd (VIRGO)—The entire day does not especially favor the beginning of new or important undertakings. The most favorable vibrations of the day operate between 11:53 a. m. and 6:37 p. m.

September 23rd and October 22nd (LIBRA)—Between 10:37 a. m. and 7 p. m. favors general business and professional activities, matters pertaining to law, religion and philosophy. After 7 p. m. care in driving and quick flare-ups of temper.

October 23rd and November 21st (SCORPIO) — There may be some slight tension, animosity or desire to make sharp retort today, but if you will hold this tendency in check, the foundation may be laid for favorable deals in business, for contacts with influential people, for literary efforts and works of art.

November 22nd and December 21st (SAGITTARIUS)—Previous to 1:19 p. m. favors appointments, meetings, financial affairs, public matters. After 1:19 p. m. favors attending to old duties or matters that require patience or perseverance.

December 22nd and January 19th (CAPRICORN)—If you have someone special to contact, and want your interview to proceed smoothly, make your engagement before 12:08 p. m. Between 12:08 p. m. and 1:06 p. m. favors work requiring mental activity. The afternoon and evening hours favor general business activity.

January 20th and February 18th (AQUARIUS)—Energy and enthusiasm in literary efforts, industrial pursuits, and in dealings with people interested in these types of work should be favorably received during the entire day.

February 19th and March 20th (PISCES)—The period previous to 4:05 p. m. favors dealings with the opposite sex, the adoption of new methods in connection with your earning capacity and monetary policies. The remainder of the afternoon and evening favors routine mental work.

Paradox of the week: Ray Ives Jr., who plays the role of "Puddin'head Duffy" on the NBC "Reg'lar Fellers" broadcasts, besieged by young fans for autographs while watching the Brooklyn Dodgers at Ebbetts Field—then calling a halt to the autographing to purchase an autographed picture of the Dodgers team from a stadium vendor.

Add radio inconsistencies: House Jameson, who plays "Mr. Aldrich" in the NBC "Aldrich Family Series," has on children; Kay Raht, who has the role of "Mrs. Aldrich" is unmarried. They'll both be back when the "Aldrich Family" returns to the air for the 1941-42 season on August 21.

Lum, Abner Are Guests On 'Barn Dance' Today

Lum and Abner, the two most celebrated residents of Pine Ridge, U. S. A., will be piped in from the Hollywood branch of the old hayloft when the National Barn Dance "weekend house party" broadcast takes the air, tonight at 8 p. m. over the NBC-Red network and WSB.

Tunes for the affair include "Let's Draw Straws" and "Jump, Little Froggie" by the Dinnings, "Sergeant, Can You Spare a Girl?" by the Hoosier Hot Shots, "The Things I Love" by Songstress Jane Kaye, a "40-fathom" tune by Basso Joe Parsons, and a pair of sizzling rarebits hot off the banjo by Eddie Peabody.

Irene Hubbard, distinguished New York actress currently heard on the CBS "Claudia and David" series in the role of "Mrs. Naughton," recently realized that she had passed a milestone in her career—here 1,500th radio broadcast. Miss Hubbard made her debut on the "Real Folks" show in 1931—and has averaged at least three programs per week ever since that time, not counting repeat broadcasts to the west.

Chicagoland To Play Beethoven's 'Sonata'

The performance of Beethoven's "Moonlight Sontata" featuring a piano solo by Conductor Henry Weber and the voices of Marion Claire, Attilio Baggiore and the chorus will highlight the "Chicagoland Hour" broadcast over Mutual and WATL tonight from 9 to 10 p. m.

Other features of the one-hour musical program will include arias from Bizet's "Carmen" and "Sari" by Kalman, as well as a presentation of Ravel's "Bolero" by the concert orchestra under the baton of Henry Weber.

A weekly Mutual network feature, the "Chicagoland Hour" is aired from the studios of WGN. William A. Bacher is in charge of the production.

The cast of "Joyce Jordan—Girl Interne" played host to its youngest visitors this week at the CBS studios. The guests were Bobby and Buddy Mills, aged three and five years, respectively. They're the sons of Harpist Verlye Mills, who expects another addition to her family in November—and she's counting on a girl this time.

McArthur Lists Haydn's Work On Music Hour

Military Symphony Will Highlight NBC Show at 8:30 P. M.

Haydn's Symphony No. 100 in G Major, the "Military" symphony, will be featured by Edwin McArthur, young American conductor, in the second of two guest appearances with the NBC Summer Symphony tonight over the NBC-Blue network and WAGA at 8:30 p. m.

Although Haydn called it "Symphony in G," audiences nicknamed it "military" when they heard such instruments as the bass drum, triangle and cymbals. Up to that time these were more commonly associated with Turkish military bands.

Except for the Bach chorale, "Jesu, Joy of Man's Desiring," the remainder of the program will be devoted to Wagner, "Dance of the Apprentices" and "Entrance of the Masters" from "Die Meistersinger," "Waldweben" and the Overture to "The Flying Dutchman."

GLADYS GEORGE STARS ON "HIGHWAY" DRAMA

Gladys George, stage and screen favorite for two decades, involves herself in her boss' love triangle as a private secretary in "Yours in Confidence," an original drama written for her appearance on the Lincoln Highway program, today at 10 a. m. over WSB.

In the role of private secretary, Miss George tries to straighten out the marital difficulties of her boss, who has been neglecting his wife for another woman, but she only manages to get herself involved, by falling in love with him, too. From there, the plot takes on several unexpected twists.

Some of Hollywood's best pictures have been put over, in part, by the talents of Miss George. She has appeared in such screen successes as "Valiant Is the Word for Carrie," "Marie Antoinette" and "The Roaring Twenties." Her stage reputation was gained in "Personal Appearance," "Milky Way" and other productions.

"DEAR FRIEND OF 67 YEARS"—Outstanding among the dozens of greetings which Bishop Warren Aiken Candler is receiving on his 84th birthday today is the letter which he is reading here. It is the annual missive from his rommate at Emory, Andrew W. Park, Greenville, S. C., class of '75, and a life-long friend.

W. A. Candler Celebrates 84th BirthdayToday

Well-Known Methodist Bishop Greets Milestone With Sharp Wit.

By CELESTINE SIBLEY.

Warren Aiken Candler, the Georgia circuit rider who became one of the Methodist church's most famous bishops, greets his 84th birthday today with the sharp-edged, self-directed wit that has made him one of the best known and most widely quoted preachers of his day.

Sitting in the sunshine on the porch of his Decatur road home yesterday afternoon, the white-haired bishop received premature birthday wishes with a wry grin.

"Thank you very much," he said. "But do you think I'll ever amount to anything?"

The birthday celebration at the Candler home will center around a family dinner, which is the only form of celebration the bishop cares about.

Doesn't Want Presents.

"I don't think I want any presents," the bishop said.

"How about that big ham in there?" asked his son, John C. Candler, with a wink, and the bishop admitted with a smile that he was interested in that.

Of more interest to Bishop Candler in his declining years than the date of his birth on a farm near Villa Rica, Ga., August 23, 1857, is the date he was graduated from his beloved Emory University, July 17, 1875.

And to him the outstanding birthday greeting among the dozens of cards and letters which he received, was the annual letter from his college roommate, Andrew W. Park, of Greenville, S. C. Park is the only other living member of the class of '75.

67-Year Friendship.

"My dear friend of 67 years," he read and paused in the middle of expressions of friendship and admiration to wipe his eyes.

For the first time the bishop's voice cracked and he seemed profoundly moved.

"I don't deserve this," he said, taking off the glasses which he borrowed for a moment from his son, and wiping his eyes.

Bishop Candler's devotion to his Alma Mater has been one of the outstanding interests in his life. He was instrumental in obtaining a $1,000,000 endowment from his brother, Asa Candler, and until recent years he was a familiar figure on the campus and at commencement exercises.

He doesn't leave his own yard nowadays and he seldom gets dressed and gets out of doors except for occasions like his birthday. With the bishop today will be his wife, who is 82 years old, and two of their three children, Mrs. Andrew Sledd, of Decatur, and the son, John. Charles Candler paid his birthday visit to his father earlier in the week.

Byrd's Figures Cited by F.D.R. As Incorrect

President on Offensive Against Critics of Defense Results.

HYDE PARK, N. Y., Aug. 22.—(AP)—President Roosevelt went on the offensive today against congressional critics of the defense program, reeling off figures to support a contention that production generally was abreast of schedules and would increase tremendously in a matter of months.

Without waiting for questions, Mr. Roosevelt took issue at a press conference with statistics cited by Senator Byrd, Democrat, Virginia, who told the senate Tuesday that defense production had been "appallingly ineffective."

Somebody, the President said, sold Byrd down the river on his figures.

The President said he had asked the War Department to check Byrd's figures.

Comparisons Made.

He made these comparisons of what he said Byrd told the senate and what the department reported to him:

1. The senator said not a single tank had gone to England.

Actually hundreds of tanks of modern design, produced in the last year, have been turned over to Britain.

2. The senator said the defense program provided for an average monthly delivery of only four 90-millimeter antiaircraft guns in the last four months of this year.

The program calls for delivery of 61 of these guns monthly and the department believes this can be done.

3. The senator said 15 37-millimeter antitank guns would be produced monthly.

Actual production in July was 72. It will expand to 160 in August, 260 in September, 320 in October.

4. Byrd asserted only 15 81-millimeter mortars would be produced monthly in the months immediately ahead.

The July output was 221. This month's production will climb to 340 and the figures for September and October will be even larger.

Plane Production.

On plane production, Byrd's figures were essentially correct, Mr. Roosevelt conceded. He added that the senator had asserted that production of military planes had declined progressively in May, June and July and that this was not strictly true. More training planes left the assembly lines, he said, and the manufacture of combat planes remained steady while designs were changed and new designs were tested.

"On the question of production," a reporter asked, "do you feel that overall production has been satisfactory?"

It never has been satisfactory, the President replied. On some things it has lagged behind and on others gone ahead of estimates—assuming that the original estimates were right. Possibly some of the estimates were too low or too high, he said.

But on the average, he declared, defense production was up to estimates.

BYRD STILL INSISTS DEFENSE IS LAGGING

WASHINGTON, Aug. 22.—(AP)—Replying to President Roosevelt's statement that he had been sold down the river on his recent figures regarding defense production, Senator Byrd, Democrat, Virginia, tonight declared that the chief executive's own figures show the nation is not preparing its defenses swiftly.

Byrd issued a statement quoting Secretary of the Navy Knox and Chairman Admiral S. Land, of the Maritime Commission, in support of some of his statistics.

Wishful Thinking Of U. S. Deplored

If the Germans are successful in their Russian campaign and are allowed two years to consolidate their gains, "nobody will ever beat them," predicted Dr. Mose Harvey, professor of history at Emory University, speaking to the Atlanta Lions Club yesterday.

The Emory professor deplored the "wishful thinking" of Americans, which he called "exactly the same thing which led to the downfall of France and other European countries."

Our present wishful thinking is of two forms, he said. Many Americans still believe that if Germany wins the war, it would not definitely hurt us. On the other hand, he pointed out, the majority of Americans refuse to believe that Germany can win the war.

F. D. R. Orders DraftExtension Put Into Effect

Demobilization Authorized After Year If Defense Permits.

HYDE PARK, N. Y., Aug. 22.—(AP)—A formal order allowing the War Department to keep men in the Army an extra 18 months, if the safety of America required them, was issued today by President Roosevelt.

It was tempered, however, with authorization for the demobilization of personnel after a year's service whenever the interests of national defense permitted.

The presidential executive order made fully effective the selective service extension act, which became law last Monday. Under it, selectees can be kept in training for 2 1-2 years instead of a single year. An 18-month extension applies also to National Guardsmen, reservists and enlisted men of the Regular Army.

Mr. Roosevelt's order said the secretary of war might release selectees after only 12 months' service and transfer them to reserve components of the Army "with a view to the early creation of a large trained reserve while, at the same time, maintaining the Army in immediate readiness for use in the defense of the nation."

'Mind' To Be Topic Of Lesson-Sermon

"Mind" is the subject of the Lesson-Sermon which will be read in First and Second Churches of Christ, Scientist, Atlanta, Sunday.

Among the citations which comprise the Lesson-Sermon is the following from the Bible: "All thy works shall praise thee, O Lord; and thy saints shall bless thee. They shall speak of the glory of thy kingdom, and talk of thy power" (Psalms 145: 10, 11).

The Lesson-Sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "When the divine precepts are understood, they unfold the foundation of fellowship, in which one mind is not at war with another, but all have one spirit, God, one intelligent source, in accordance with the Scriptural command: 'Let this Mind be in you, which was also in Christ Jesus.' Man and his Maker are correlated in divine Science, and real consciousness is cognizant only of the things of God" (p. 276).

Actual Hollywood Church Is Setting for Scenes In "One Foot in Heaven"

By Harold Hefternan.

HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 20.—Scene of Hollywood's most spectacular real-life weddings—notably the Jeanette MacDonald - Gene Raymond and Deanna Durbin-Vaughn Paul nuptials—the Wilshire Methodist church is today the actual setting for some of the most important sequences in Warners' "One Foot in Heaven," the biography of a typical American minister.

This is a Monday morning, but inside the church and on the main thoroughfare fronting it there is all the bustling activity attending a Sunday service hour. Technicians have been there since dawn, placing lights and installing equipment.

There is no congregation in the pews, for in this scene Fredric March, playing the star role of a Methodist minister, is not in the church to conduct a service. He has been invited to become the church pastor and before making his final decision is giving the place a thorough inspection. His wife, played by Martha Scott, is there, too.

As the scene opens, March and Miss Scott stand in the center aisle, looking forward toward the altar.

"Everything you've hoped for," Miss Scott says softly.

"A magnificent church," March replies. "A life of comfort for ourselves and our family. And all I have to do is say 'Yes'."

"That's all, Will," Miss Scott encourages.

"It's a very little word," March says thoughtfully. "Perhaps too little."

The camera pans with them as they walk up the aisle toward the altar.

As they reach the altar, March drops to his knees, bows his head in silent prayer and Miss Scott, just behind him, does likewise. He is asking divine guidance, and as he rises to his feet there is a look in his face that indicates he has found it.

Slowly, March walks to the pulpit, stands for a moment looking out at the silent auditorium, the empty pews. Plainly, he is visualizing the vast congregation. But shakes his head slightly as he turns from the pulpit and walks to Miss Scott's side.

"I can't do it," he tells her. "Accept the fruit of another man's labors! It would be like stealing. And I can't quit in the middle of a fight—and become known as a man who couldn't finish a job. I'm going home."

He looks at Miss Scott with a silent question. Will she mind too much? He gets his answer immediately.

"I'm glad, Will," she answers simply.

Outside the church, a crowd of several hundred persons has assembled. Police are now on the job rigging up curb ropes to keep them back. The sight of motion picture equipment on busy Wilshire Boulevard has brought this audience. By noon, the milling crowds will become a real problem.

Much of the ribbing off-stage dialogue exchanged by directors and players is more entertaining than carefully planned material recorded on the sound track. For instance. . . .

In a scene for "The Shadow of the Thin Man," latest of the William Powell-Myrna Loy laughing detective series, Powell is supposed to lie flat on his back with Asta, the famous wire-haired fixture of the series, perched on his chest.

But Asta wouldn't stay put. After much consultation, Powell went to his dressing room, rearranged the collar of his shirt and returned. This time Asta sat on Bill's chest throughout the scene, sniffing eagerly at his neck.

Powell had changed his necktie for a few strips of bacon.

"Do you suppose Asta was interested in the bacon," Myrna Loy asked, innocently, "on in the ham?"

Then there was a between-scenes pow-pow on the "Louisiana Purchase" set, with Bob Hope, Vera Zorina, Victor Moore and Maxie Rosenbloom sitting in a group—waiting.

Rosenbloom is wearing a coat—his own—of particularly loud check, plaids, stripes and hues.

"My goodness," says Moore, "have you got something good in the fifth at Saratoga? That coat looks like it must have been made out of Whirlaway's blanket."

Paramount is shooting a busy street sequence right on Hollywood Boulevard for "The Remarkable Andrew," featuring Ellen Drew and William Holden.

About 2,000 people have gathered to witness this open-air exhibit and a dozen policemen are pacing up and down urging the onlookers to do no talking. This plea is echoed more strenuously by several assistant directors.

"Quiet!" they scream at half-minute intervals.

The crowd is cowed — and hushed. A child starts to say something. A mother clamps a hand over the youngster's mouth. A dozen people lean over and hiss "Sh-sh-sh-sh."

Now, at last, everything is ready. "Action," calls Director Stuart Heisler. And then it happened.

Cameraman Ted Sparkhul sneezed.

Where the crew neckline flourished before, the "V" neckline is due for popularity among campus devotees of sweater collections. Here's a good example, a red shetland with neck just right for convertible shirt collar. Note loose, boxy lines and hip length. It's worn with a red and beige plaid skirt that has pleats to give freedom and fullness of action.

Shorter Skirts Take Real Leg Work

By Ida Jean Kain.

If you haven't a good pair of legs to stand on, you may appreciate the warning that fall styles will be short. Since 17 inches from the floor is now almost considered conservative, this probably means skirts will inch up a fraction.

The women who have lovely legs won't mind. But if you happen to be among the other 95 per cent, you may want to do something about the situation and summer is certainly the time to start.

For one thing, swimming is excellent leg work. And for another, you can walk barefoot in the sand at the beach. That's good for both feet and legs. It strengthens your arches and stretches your leg muscles.

Tramping over a golf course is fine for your leg muscles. If you have the slightest tendency to knock knees, you couldn't do better than take up bicycling—pedaling forces you to hold your legs correctly and counteracts the inclination to rotate the thighs inward.

But even without being footloose, you can make good strides toward improving the contours of your legs. Kick off your pumps, turn on the radio, and skip about the room in your bare feet. Then stand in the same place with feet parallel, and rise on the toes of one foot as you press the heel of the other down against the floor.

Take a tip from some of the girls who are said to have the most beautiful legs in the world, and make a habit of walking about the house without your shoes. When you go up and down stairs, do your climbing and descending on tiptoes. And stop at a step for a minute while you get in an exercise: Stand with the foot half on, half off the step, and rise on toes, then lower heel below the edge of the step.

For some real exercise, practice the old deep-knee bend. Rise on toes of both feet, then, very slowly and without letting heels touch floor, go into a deep knee bend.

To turn that into a dual duty exercise which contracts the muscles of one leg while stretching those of the other leg, go into a deep knee bend on one leg as you swing the other straight out in front, heel pointed. Well, you can try! If you need props, stand between two chairs, seats turned inward so that your hands can rest on them and lower yourself toward the floor.

You see? There's nothing wrong with the average pair of legs that a good system of exercise can't improve!

The leaflet, "Leg Normalizing Exercises," contains illustrated exercises for improving both fat and thin legs. Send for this, enclosing a stamped return envelop to Ida Jean Kain, The Constitution, Atlanta, Ga.

Patient Must Seek Basis of "Nerves"

By Dr. William Brady.

Where the conductor of this column erred tactically was in classifying 'em as Class A and Class B neurotics. Had he labelled 'em as neurathenics instead, and then left 'em to play along with their whimsey for a time before depriving them of it, he might have held their interest long enough to do 'em some good.

Many persons under the stigma of neuroticism owe their condition largely to two characteristics, namely, ignorance of the wiseacre sort and stinginess—they're too ignorant and too stingy to go to a good doctor, leave "nerves" out of the interview, and have a proper medical examination to find out what is the matter.

The particular kind of ignorance to which I refer is just that—bringing "nerves" or "nervous weakness" or "nervous exhaustion" or "nerve strain" into the interview with the physician. As long as this notion of "nerves" or "lack of nerve energy" is seriously accepted as accounting for any impairment of health or functional ailment there is little likelihood of material benefit from treatment.

At this point, I expect, a good many Class ——— a good many wiseacres will ask querulously what in tarnation does ail them if it isn't bad nerves. And to that rhetorical or hypothetical quesiotn I reply, "That is for your physician to try to discover."

Now I'll stand on the sidelines while a distinguished authority on nutrition holds forth—and his words constitute the nudge to neurathenics:

"Tension and irritable weakness states, frequently alluded to as neurasthenia and nervous exhaustion, are manifested in complaints of fatigability, weakness and exhaustibility, head pressures, poor sleep, irritability, feeling of tenseness, inappetence, various aches and pains, subjectively poor memory, and difficulty with concentration . . . The etiology (cause) of this condition is not clear. . . .

"With a diet poor in vitamin B1 Joliffe and his co-workers were able to produce a neurasthenic syndrome (pronounced sin-drome, accent on first syllable, means a group of such signs and symptoms as above described) in four out of five experimental subjects (interns), who complained of fatigue, lassitude, anorexia, precordial (over the heart) pain, burning of the feet, dyspnea (short breath) on exertion, muscle cramps, and palpitation . . . calf muscle tenderness. Symptoms were observed as early as the fourth day, and objective signs as early as the fifth day. . . . The addition of thiamin (vitamin B1) alone to the experimental diet caused all symptoms to disappear within three days, and the objective signs within six days."

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

Well Balanced Diet.

Does a healthy young person getting a well-balanced diet including milk, eggs, vegetables, etc., need any extra vitamin intake the year around?

(——, D. M. D.)

Answer—Depends on what the etc. covers. Unless the person takes plenty of butter, cream and egg yolk, gets plenty of sunshine on naked skin, he or she probably can take some extra vitamin D more or less the year around with advantage. Unless he or she uses a liberal amount of whole or plain wheat or things made of it, in place of refined white flour products, some extra vitamin B complex may be taken with advantage, too. Send stamped envelope bearing your address and ask for booklet on Reserve Power —Vite.

Vitamin B in Diabetes.

Please explain the value of vitamin B complex in diabetes and its relation to the dosage of insulin.

(L. J.)

Answer—One function of vitamin B is to promote the metabolism or utilization of carbohydrate. The diabetes patient supplementing the restricted diet with vitamin B complex may find it necessary after several weeks to reduce the daily dose of insulin. Send 10 cents and stamped envelope bearing your address, for booklet "Training for Diabetes."

Calcium for Headache.

In an article in your column some time ago I think you suggested some form of calcium as a remedy for headache. Please repeat the instruction. (A.B.)

Answer—Send stamped envelope bearing your address. Ask for monographs on "Why Have Headache?" and "The Calcium Shortage."

Teaspoon in the Pint.

What amount of boric acid in water for eyewash? (Mrs. O. W.)

Act Dependent and Escape "Pal" Class

By DIXIE GEORGE.

Dear Dixie:

I am 16 and a senior in high school. I am very much in love with a boy about my age. We have grown up together and are good friends, but he will never think of me as anything else. He often ignores me completely, but at other times he is polite and friendly. Please help me to make him notice me and think of me as someone beside a childhood friend. I would be so happy if only I could make him care.

UNHAPPY.

The thing for you to do is to change your personality. Be different. Be grown-up. Treat him more like a beau than a brother as I presume you have treated him during your years of friendship. Be more feminine and depend more on him than you have in the past. If he does not think of you in a romantic way, the thing for you to do is to create some romance. If you have been a good sport and the pal type with him, go into reverse. Don't always be ready to go play a game of tennis with him or to go swimming. Try to have dates for dances or the show. Try to put yourself across as a girl, but not as his pal of school days. He no doubt thinks that you like to be pals with him and would rather be a good sport than be his girl friend. You will have to create an air of mystery about yourself and make him wonder what kind of a girl he has been going with all these years. You might try your allure on some other boy to see how it works before you start on your one and only. I think it would be better to try the new personality on some one else and then you can judge how your friend will take to your new role.

Dear Dixie:

TARDY AFFECTION IS OFTEN MOST SINCERE

I am a boy 18 years old. I met a girl when we were in junior high school, and have been going with her rather steadily since we entered senior high school. We are both seniors. I love this girl almost as much as life itself. Although she says she does not love anyone, she dates other boys, but none of them as steady as she does me. Does this mean anything? She knows I love her, for I have told her so more than once.

How can I further prove that I love her and at the same time win her true affection? In a way I believe she does love me, but she has never made it known either by word or action. She does not think it is exactly right for a girl 17 years old to limit her dates to one boy. YES MAN.

If I were you I would not worry much about this situation, and I would not worry about trying to further prove your love for her. You have done your part and the only thing you can do is to continue going with her and love her as you say you do. If you have made up your mind that you love her, if you are sincere about it, then there is nothing else for you to worry about. You certainly have done your part. You will have to stand by like Old Faithful until she realizes that she loves you more than the others.

Although I know that you want all of her dates, she is being very wise in not limiting them. I think that her giving you dates is a proof of her affection and I know that you would not expect her to declare her love for you in every other breath. If she is slow in falling in love with you, you have the consolation of knowing that when it does come it will be all the more sincere.

MY DAY: Summer Decrease In Charity Gifts

By Eleanor Roosevelt.

PENSACOLA, Fla., Thursday.—Yesterday morning, very soon after breakfast, I left Washington by plane for Jacksonville, Fla. I have hoped for some time to find 48 hours when I could get away to visit some friends who are now stationed near here. The young man, Lieutenant E. R. Miller, is a naval reserve officer and he and his wife are from the north and therefore not accustomed to southern summers. The heat has seemed a little extreme at times, I think, particularly since they moved into a new house and completely settled it during the hottest month of the summer.

It is fun, though, spending 24 hours with young people who are enthusiastic about a new home and all that they are doing. So many of us never show our enthusiasm about anything, and I think that does make life rather drab.

When I was in Washington yesterday a kind friend spoke to me about the work carried on by the Little Sisters of the Poor. These sisters, who are devoted to poverty, are the most indefatigable workers. With the gifts which they collect, they care for old people, children and all those who for one reason or another are overwhelemd by the difficulties of living and need kindly support for a time. Sometimes, in the case of old people, they care for them until they die. In spite of the hard work, the care is gentle and there is always an element of gaiety in whatever they do.

My friend tells me that in summer it is even harder than in winter for the sisters to obtain the gifts they need to carry on their ministrations. Each time that I visit the Old People's Home in Washington, which these sisters run, I marvel at what they accomplish. I hope that we shall make their tasks easier by remembering them both in winter and in summer.

I hear that there is to be a conference at Williams College from August 24 to the 29, which has as its purpose a discussion of the problems which may be faced in the post-war world, if we are to build a permanent peace. This conference is called "The Williamstown Institute of Human Relations." Because many religious leaders of various denominations feel the urgency of arousing public opinion now to discuss these problems, I feel sure that there will be good speakers and a large attendance.

Cafe, Baggers Clash Tonight For City Title

Gene Nix Will Oppose Lefty Moreland at Ponce de Leon.

By JOHNNY BRADBERRY.

A pair of the city's best left-handers will oppose each other on the mound tonight when Fulton Bag and Central Cafe meet at 8 o'clock at Ponce de Leon park in the finals of the third annual Atlanta Amateur Baseball Federation tournament.

Gene Nix, ex-Buford star, will toe the rubber for Central, while Lefty Moreland will do the chunking for Fulton Bag's 1939 champions.

A Central Cafe victory would force another game between the two clubs as it would leave each with one defeat. However, if undefeated Fulton Bag can come through with a victory, it would win the trip to Youngstown, Ohio, for the national tournament, which starts September 6.

FOUR IN ROW.

Fulton Bag, which entered the finals with a victory over Clarkdale Tuesday night, has won four straight games. Central Cafe, which also entered the finals with a win over Clarkdale Thursday, has won four and lost one—oddly enough to Clarkdale.

On paper, it would seem Central has the best team but the Fulton boys have been playing heads-up ball throughout the tournament and hold a big advantage in that they can shoot the works in an all-out effort to win the first game.

If Central Cafe should win the first game, the final battle will be played next week.

TOURNEY FAVORITE.

Harold Bishop's boys were the pre-tourney favorites for the title but Fulton Bag had a tough time winning its way into the select circle of 16 teams. But Fulton has been getting some sensational pitching and hard hitting and will be tough to get on the short end of the score.

However, many believe Nix is just the guy who can do it. A star of Buford's National semi-pro championship team. Lefty Gene has made only one start in the meet and lost, 1-2, to Clarkdale. However, he has plenty of rest and should be just right.

WON SHUTOUT.

Moreland's last effort was a neat 2-0 shutout victory over Post Office. He, too, has plenty of rest under his belt.

If Fulton Bag wins, it will have two legs on the huge trophy given by the Atlanta Amateur Baseball Federation. The cup must be won three times for permanent possession.

This is Central Cafe's first start in the tourney. The trip to Youngstown is paid for by the association.

Grant-Bobbitt Defeated by Mulloy-Sabin

CHESTNUT HILL, Mass., Aug. 22.—(UP)—Frank Kovacs, towering Oakland, Cal., netman, was a one-man team in the 60th national doubles championships today but fell short of the miracle needed for an upset.

As a result, semi-final ranks in the men's division were filled by two more seeded teams to continue the formful advance at Longwood Cricket Club.

Kovacs, playing with inexperienced Will Crosby, a home-town pal, treated the gallery to a fine individual exhibition only to lose to the seeded tandem of National Singles Champion Don McNeill, of Oklahoma City, Okla., and Frank Parker, of Altadena, Cal., 6-4, 6-0, 4-6, 3-6, 6-2.

Fourth-seeded Gardnar Mulloy, of Coral Gables, Fla., and Wayne Sabin, of Portland, Ore., were other favorites who remained in the running. They conquered Bitsy Grant and Russell Bobbitt, of Atlanta, 2-6, 7-5, 7-5, 6-3.

One pair of finalists in the women's division was determined when Mrs. Sarah Palfrey Cooke, of New York, and Margaret Osborne, of San Francisco, swamped the teen-aged California surprises, Shirley Catton, of Alameda, and Pearl Harland, of Santa Monica, 6-3, 6-2.

Mulloy and Sabin, consistent doubles players although new partners, moved to the net after losing the first set and proceeding to trap the southerners with soft drop and lob shots. Grant and Bobbitt both seemed a trifle stale after winning their record 102-game match Wednesday.

Grant's service collapsed at crucial stages in the final three sets. The first break in the 12th game of the second set enabled Mulloy and Sabin to draw even. Bitsy's delivery failed in the eighth and twelfth games of the third set, first to lose his team's lead and then to blow the set.

Tomorrow's semi-finals in the men's division pit defending champions Jack Kramer, of Los Angeles, and Ted Schroeder, of Glendale, Cal., against fourth seeded Bobby Riggs, of Chicago, and blond Gene Mako, of Los Angeles and Parker-McNeill against Mulloy-Sabin.

AMATEUR GAME.

Arrow Shirts, of the Atlanta League, and Georgia Duck, of the Textile League, will play a post-season tilt at 3:30 today on the Fruit Growers' diamond.

All in The Game

BY JACK TROY

Two Chances The gentleman on the phone said we were wrong about Brooklyn not having won a World Series. He said he was under the impression that the Robins had won one around 1920.

"Just want to keep the records straight," he said. "Sherry Smith was pitching for Brooklyn."

I booted one the other day in saying that Brooklyn had had only one chance to win a World Series previously. Actually, they've had two. But they've never won.

In 1916 they were beaten by the Boston Red Sox, four games to one, and then in 1920 the Cleveland Indians defeated them, five games to two, according to the Spalding record book.

Old Sarge Bagby, who is making a fine reputation as a Coastal Plain umpire, won 31 games for Cleveland that year. He was a prominent figure in the World Series.

Chances are if the Dodgers should win the National league pennant, there still wouldn't be a World Series at Ebbetts field in Brooklyn. It doesn't seat enough folks.

Just in case, the matter already has reached the brass knucks stage, and Judge Landis may make the final decision. That is, whether to make the World Series an all-Yankee stadium affair, or to hold the usual number of games in Ebbetts field, which seats less than half the folks the stadium does.

Personally, I hope they decide to play some of the games in Brooklyn. The Dodgers are going to have two strikes on them if they have to meet the Yankees, anyway, and an all-stadium series would be nothing short of murder.

Still, the Cardinals may have something to say about all this before October.

Wilson Wanted Grimes The story is that Jimmie Wilson did not have his way when Ki Ki Cuyler was signed as Cub coach. Wilson, it seems, favored "Boiling" Burleigh Grimes.

It was General Manager Jimmy Gallagher who favored Cuyler and Wilson agreed when there wasn't anything else he could do.

One can hardly blame Wilson for the signing of Cuyler may mean Wilson's job as manager of the Cubs. In addition to the fine job he did as Chattanooga manager, Cuyler also developed some outstanding players.

One of them today is a star Chicub—Bill Nicholson.

It won't surprise anyone if Cuyler is given a chance to see what he can do toward restoring the Cubs to a spot of prominence in National league affairs.

York Due To Go There is another story going the rounds that Rudy York will be traded to the St. Louis Browns after this season.

The Tigers are after George McQuinn and will be willing to give up York, whose batting average has slumped around the .250 mark. This has cost the Cartersville Cherokee a lot of prestige.

Mainly what seems to be the trouble with Detroit is the fact that Hank Greenberg is gone and Bobo Newsome can't win. The absence of Greenberg's hitting doubtless is a big reason for Detroit's plight.

When Greenberg returns there is expected to be a campaign started to install him as manager.

Yearbook Street & Smith's annual football Yearbook is already on sale. In its second year, the pictorial Yearbook is a credit to Charles Moran, the editor. Eight hundred major grid winners are predicted in a selector's chart with complete schedules, 160 teams are analyzed and there are 250 photos. All sections of the country are treated and there is a pro football digest, in addition. Yours truly did the piece on southern football and selected Duke as the outstanding team. Last year, taking in all sections, only in the south was the Yearbook 100 per cent right in choosing Tennessee to go through unbeaten.

Tulburt Wins Trapshoot in Big Surprise

VANDALIA, Ohio, Aug. 22.—(AP)—In the most "nervous" shoot-off in Grand American Handicap history, Walter L. Tulbert, 52-year-old Detroit (Mich.) furnace salesman, won trapshooting's blue ribbon event today by beating Del Bundschuh, 28-year-old Fremont (Ohio) machinist, 23 to 22.

The two unknowns tied at 99 of 100 to beat out a field of 1,093, second largest in the 42-year history of the "Roaring Grand," and each had a grand case of "jitters" when called out in front of a gallery of about 10,000 for the deciding extra-target event.

Tulbert appeared out of the running as he missed the fifth and sixth targets to go two down, but he went straight the rest of the way to take the title as Bundschuh muffed the 12th, 14th and 19th clays.

Miss W. Marie Hill, 29-year-old Kansas City star who learned to shoot a couple of years ago so she could shoot quail for her father, who has failing eyesight, won the feminine championship with 96 of 100, followed by Mrs. P. J. Herold, of San Francisco, with 95, and Mrs. Isaac Andrews, of Spartanburg, S. C., with 93.

Griffin Equals Ace At Chattahoochee

Knox Griffin never made a hole in one in his life, but he got the equivalent of one on the Chattahoochee course this week.

It was this way:

He sliced his tee shot a little over 100 yards on the 332-yard No. 6 hole, and was still back of a hill and couldn't see the green some 200 yards away.

He banged a spoon shot long and true, but it was only after a long search round the green that he looked in the cup and found his eagle two nestling in the par-four hole.

Lonnie Clark Upset by Lee In Wild Fight

In what observers called the greatest amateur fight witnessed in Atlanta in a decade, Roland Lee, of Atlanta Y. M. C. A. featherweight, stepped up two divisions last night before a howling throng at Lakewood Park and scored a startling victory over Welterweight Lonnie Clark, pride and joy of the Atlanta Boys' Club.

It was a fight so close and so bitterly fought that both boxers reeled to their corners utterly exhausted at the final bell. For three rounds they stood toe-to-toe and exploded haymakers on each other's rugged chins. There was little to choose, but two of the three of the judges voted for Lee, who had to beg officials for months before they would put him in there against a foe who outweighed him at least eight pounds. It was Clark's first loss of the year.

LAST NIGHT'S RESULTS.

Roland Lee, 132, decisioned Lonnie Clark, 140.

Dick Adkinson, 165, won on TKO in first round over Griff Buice, 160.

Ernest Stokes, 122, Atlanta Boys Club, won decision over Pete Tucker, 125, Gainesville.

Bill Glaccum, 120, Decatur, lost decision to Ed Johnson, 114, Atlanta.

Leland Murphy, Dacula, KO'd Nap Coker, Canton, in second round.

Ralph Thomas, 135, lost in second round via KO route to George Bond, Camp Gordon Naval Air Station.

Perry Gant, 118, Norcross and Jack Duke, 112, Atlanta, drew.

Buster Duke, 108, decisioned Bill Thompson, 110.

Southern League

VOLS WIN PAIR.

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., Aug. 22.—(AP)—Playing the perfect hosts at their home in the Southern Association cellar today, Knoxville's Smokies entertained Nashville's Vols by presenting them two baseball games. Scores were 12 to 7 and 9 to 2.

Shrine Tourney Won by White

Houston White took the Wiley Moore trophy yesterday in the annual golf tournament held in connection with the outing of the Shrine's Yaarab temple at East Lake. He had a gross 80.

Barnes E. Sale and Charlie Brown tied for the Potentate's Cup with net scores of 65. Sale also won a prize for having the most birdies and pars.

Prizes for birdies also were taken by Dr. M. D. Huff, Judge Jesse Wood and R. M. Rapp. Bob Ford got the booby prize, a mop, so he could do something about that 125 tee shot.

After the battle, the Shriners had a banquet and a dance at the clubhouse.

South Kicks Field Goal To Defeat North, 3-0

Jimmy Luck Boots Ball Through Posts With Only Three Minutes Left, Giving Rebels 2-1 Edge.

By JOHNNY BRADBERRY,
Assistant Sports Editor.

Jimmy Luck calmly placekicked a field goal with only three minutes left to play last night to give Bear Wolf's South Georgia All-Stars a 3-to-0 victory over the North before 5,000 shirt-sleeved fans at Grant field.

The Rebels grabbed one of their many breaks, cashed it in and headed south with the victory which gave the South a 2-1 edge in the all-star series, played as a climax to the Georgia High School Coaches' Clinic. There has been one tie in the four-year history of the game.

Luck, an Americus lad and reported as one of the best high school prospects in the state, was standing on the 14-yard line when he sent the game-winning placement squarely through the uprights. The scrimmage line was on the seven.

FUMBLE RECOVERED.

The break came when Lovic Barbury, of Albany, dropped on a fumbled end-around on the North's 24-yard line. Then Luck shot a pass to Albany's Bob Reynolds for the first down at the four.

Luck tried tackle and big Kale Alexander knocked him down for a yard loss. Reynolds tried a reverse and Jack McSherry spilled him for minus two. Luck was rushed on a pass and it was incomplete.

Thus the stage was set for the placement. Buddy McCrary held the ball.

Up until this point the North's big red line, coached by Rex Enright, of South Carolina, had fought off the charge of the supposedly superior Rebel backs, although wretched breaks time and again fell against them.

And if Luck hadn't kicked the game-winning placement, the lead on this story would be quite different, as there was a little kid, practically unknown outside of Atlanta, named Ray Dickey, from West Fulton, who captured the hearts of the 5,000 faithful who saw him perform.

DICKEY LEADER.

Dickey was the leading ground gainer for the night, having runs of 19, 13 and 10 yards to his credit and a beautiful 20-yard punt return. In addition, there were numerous lesser gains.

But the fates were against him and those same fates will keep him from becoming the same "nothing-to-star" player that Johnny Bosch was in the first classic of the G. H. S. C. A.

Alexander was the ace of the big red line. His 230 pounds was harder to move than a non-paying tenant and anything that came his way should have changed its mind.

Marbury and Carlos Phillips, of Valdosta, stood out for the blue-shirted Rebels.

FIRST QUARTER.

The North got in a hole soon after the kickoff when Hayes picked up a punt by Luck on the goal line and could get back only to the four-yard stripe. Then Cox's punt went out of bounds on the North 28.

However, the Yanks came out of it and took the ball over on its own 24 when McCrary's plunge on fourth down lost two yards as Alexander broke through to spill him.

Hayes sparked an attack which drove to a first down on three plays on the North 36.

However, the South forced a punt and took over on its own 28. Luck and McCrary ran three times and the Rebels had first down on the 41.

McCrary skirted end for nine yards, but a penalty for clipping set the Rebs back and the quarter ended with the North holding the ball on its own 28-yard line.

SECOND QUARTER.

Evans broke off tackle on a reverse for 10 yards on the North's 38. Then Dickey sped through the middle for 19 yards and another first down on the South's 43. Dickey failed at tackle, but then gained 17 yards and another first down on the South's 30. West failed, but Dickey shot a pass to West for a first down on the 19. However, the drive ended on the South 24 when Bagwell dropped Dickey's fourth-down pass.

The South started a drive at that point and marched to the North 34, but Reynolds fumbled and lost eight and two passes were incomplete so Luck punted.

The Yanks couldn't gain a first down, so Cox punted and again it was short, going out of bounds on the North 38. The Rebels failed on four passes and the ball went over.

Dickey ran for six yards as the half ended.

Score: North 0; South 0.

THIRD QUARTER.

The South got another break soon after the second half started. Berman fumbled and Culpepper recovered for the Rebels on their own 48.

Reynolds gained eight on a reverse but the Yankee line stiffened and forced a punt, which went over the goal line. The South forced a punt and took the ball on its own 36. Ray ran for 10 on a reverse. Luck got 18 more at tackle. But three plays later, McCrary fumbled and Slayton recovered for the North on the North's 37.

Neither team threatened seriously from then until the end of the quarter.

FOURTH QUARTER.

The North started a drive on its own 30, but a 15-yard penalty set them back. Cox punted out of bounds on the South 11. Then Luck kicked and the ball was downed on the North 35.

The Rebels got still another break when Bagwell fumbled an end-around and Marbury recovered for the South on the North 24. Luck passed to Reynolds for 20 yards and a first down on the four. Alexander and McSherry spilled two plays for a 3-yard loss and a pass fell incomplete. Then, with McCrary holding, Luck kicked a field goal, with the ball on the 14-yard line to give the Rebs a 3-0 lead.

The game ended a few minutes later, with the South holding the ball in its own territory.

Bobby Selects Jim Demaret, Hogan in First

DETROIT, Aug. 22.—(AP)—Opening round pairings were posted today by Captain Walter Hagen and his Ryder Cup team and Captain Bobby Jones' challengers, who will play Saturday and Sunday at the Detroit Golf Club to raise money for the United Service Organizations.

Jones named a pair of Texans, Jimmy Demaret and Ben Hogan, to start against Hagen's choice of Vic Ghezzi, national PGA champion, and Jimmy Hines.

In the second lineup Sam Snead and Ralph Guldahl, two-time winner of the national open, will oppose Craig Wood, present open champion, and Lawson Little, the 1940 open champ. The Snead-Guldahl duo was Hagen's choice.

For the battle of No. 3 teams Hagen named Byron Nelson and Harold McSpaden to oppose Captain Jones and Gene Sarazen.

Hagen's No. 4 lineup has Henry Picard, former PGA champion, and Dick Metz facing John Bulla and Clayton Heafner. In No. 5 spot challengers Denny Shute, former PGA and British open champion, and Ed Dudley will oppose another former PGA champion, Paul Runyan, and Horton Smith.

Saturday's program of Scotch foursomes was scheduled to begin at 9:30 a. m. Singles pairings for the Sunday matches will be announced Saturday night.

RECORD PAY-OFF.

PAWTUCKET, R. I., Aug. 22.—(AP)—The daily double at Narragansett Park paid $1,573.80—one of the largest such payoffs on the track's records—to each of 12 ticket holders as Passing Cloud won the first race and Sparkling Gem, a 36-to-1 shot, took the second.

Burge Smacks 36th of Year In 7th Inning

Atlanta Infield Blows Up and Boots Across 'Nooga Runs.

By JACK TROY.
Constitution Sports Editor.

Ox Miller got the Lookouts off to a flying start in the final series of the year with the Crackers last night, pitching steady baseball as his mates clubbed first Rene Cortes and then Floyd (Pep) Rambert to win, 7 to 4.

The defeat cost the Crackers a game and a half as Nashville won a double header over Knoxville, and so today they lead the Southern League by a mere 12 1-2 games.

Rene Cortes was the losing pitcher. In the four and one third innings he lasted, the youthful Cajan was responsible for five runs and seven hits.

It wasn't a case of the Crackers not being able to hit Miller.

NINE SAFE HITS.

They got nine safe blows, including Lester Burge's 36th homer of the season with a man on base ahead of him, but for the most part they failed to hit in the clutch. That's been the story in most of the recent losses.

All season long, however, the Lookouts have exhibited a certain mastery over the league leaders, and last night's contest was no exception. The Lookouts collected 11 hits in all. Rufus Hooks included a homer among his three safeties, while Jack Sanford clouted a triple and two singles. He and Hooks batted in the bulk of the runs.

The Lookouts captured an early lead and virtually won going away. For one fleeting half an inning the Crackers appeared to be back in the game. But it was merely an optical illusion.

Chattanooga has all kinds of pitching ready to throw against the Crackers. Either Red Evans or Crip Polli will face Ed Heusser in today's game. Heusser will be after his 21st victory. Sunday Buck Marrow, veteran Lookout right-hander, will attempt the iron man stunt against Atlanta. Sunday's another day, however. Here are the sad details of last nights fracas.

A Cracker error on a double play ball kept alive a Chattanooga rally in the second, and two runs were the result. Sanford and Chapman led off with clean singles. Then Bolyard bounced to Gerlach, who threw wide to second, and all hands were safe, Browne forced Bolyard and Sanford scored. On Hooks' force of Browne, Chapman tallied.

SANFORD TRIPLES.

After Letchas singled with two out in the third, Sanford rapped a triple to the scoreboard in left center for the Lookouts' third run.

The Lookouts scored their fourth and fifth runs in the fifth. Clary was hit by a pitched ball and Letchas walked after Olson grounded out. Clary scored on Sanford's single and Letches raced home on Chapman's one-base wallop off the signs.

There was great cheering in the sixth when the Crackers finally scored a run. Burge, who forced Ryan, advanced on Glock's single and raced home on Marshall's infield out.

It was too good to be true, though. The Crackers booted in another Lookout run in the seventh. Letchas doubled and after two were away Ryan kicked Bolyard's grounder and then threw the ball away at first, allowing Letchas to score.

BURGE GETS 36TH.

The Crackers scored runs of all kinds—to the total of three—in their half of the seventh. First of all Rambert walked and went all the way to third when Hooks, trying to catch him off first, heaved the ball into right field. Clary threw Mailho's roller away and Rambert scored. Then Burge hit a towering home run—his 36th—to put the Crackers back in the game.

Hooks teed off as lead-off man in the eighth, hitting a homer and stretching the Lookout advantage to three runs.

Miller shut the door on the Crackers in the eighth and ninth.

FLYING GOLF BALLS.

DETROIT, Aug. 22.—The sporting situation moves rather abruptly from flying leather—flying horsehide and flying pigskin—to flying golf balls. It moves on the professional side to the Bobby Jones outfit thrown against the Ryder Cup team at Detroit this weekend, then on to Omaha, where the amateurs will spend a busy week attempting to nominate a lone survivor by Saturday night of next week.

This means that for the next few days we can leave Louis and Nova, the Dodgers, the Cardinals, and football, as we return to the way of the ancient green, the sand-filled troughs and the winning putt.

The Bobby Jones-Ryder Cup party in Detroit should be one of the top golf melodramas of the year. It finds a fairly grim Ryder Cup team, headed by Sammy Snead and Byron Nelson, facing an equally grim challenging team headed by Craig Wood and Ben Hogan, with the veterans Bobby Jones and Gene Sarazen backing up their stars.

This show means at least $20,000 for the U. S. O. and two of the greatest crowds that ever looked at two days' play in this well-bunkered nation.

On the Ryder Cup team we have Nelson, Snead, Guldahl, Ghezzi, Picard, Horton Smith, Runyan, Hines, Metz and McSpaden. On the Bobby Jones challenging side we have Jones, Wood, Hogan, Demaret, Sarazen, Shute, Little, Heafner, Dudley and Bulla.

We have Captain Bobby Jones against Captain Walter Hagen, who together have won 25 or 26 major championships—a record no other pair will ever match.

Here are more great competitors than you'll find on any four major league ball clubs or in 10 years of boxing. I'm referring to class—mental and physical. Compare, for example, the tennis pros with the golf pros. Or forget about it. You can't compare them.

Detroit Party.

This Detroit party should be one of the headline competitions of the year in the matter of skill, tradition, hard fighting—all that makes for competition in the upper grade.

Snead, Hogan, Nelson, Little, Jones, Sarazen, Hagen—these men span more than 20 years of international fame. Many of their names are known around the world. They know no boundaries from New Zealand to New England, from the Argentine to Alaska.

The Ryder Cup team was picked some time ago to face the British. The war ended that part of the program. A year ago Gene Sarazen organized a similar offensive against the Ryder Cup team and was beaten in a close finish.

Bobby Jones came in at the request of Tom Dewey, Bobby Strawbridge and others working for the U. S. O., to put on an even bigger show and raise even more money for one of the great causes of our time.

On this occasion I think the Bobby Jones team will slip safely through. But only by a scant margin. Any team headed by Byron Nelson and Sammy Snead is no silk mesh in front of you. But neither is an attacking side headed by Hogan, Wood, Sarazen, Little, Jones and the others.

More Money.

One feature of this Detroit affair is that it will bring together better golfers and draw more money than any United States-British Ryder Cup gathering could ever hope to do at any time in golf history.

It is purely national—not international—but it has all the class of the game. It will have more color, more skill, more tradition hooked with it than any Ryder Cup match ever played.

Now we'll turn to the National Amateur championship at Omaha, which gets under way on Monday. The competition here will be quite keen and interesting, but lacking star flavor.

There was a time when amateur golf had Francis Ouimet, Jerry Travers, Chick Evans, Bobby Jones, George Von Elm, Johnny Goodman, Lawson Little—most of them good enough to win an amateur crown and a United States open.

Amateur golfers today have gone back a long way, when you compare them to Nelson, Hogan, Snead, Sarazen, Little and a dozen others. The answer is this—toss in the best 20 amateurs where the star pros are playing and their main hope is to get someone in tenth or twelfth place. Bud Ward made the last charge at Philadelphia two years ago. As a rule their stars are badly outclassed by the best of the pros.

At Omaha.

This doesn't mean there won't be an interesting scramble at Omaha. The three top golfers should be Bud Ward, Dick Chapman and Harry Todd. All three might easily be cudgelled out in the 18-hole tests, where anything can happen. Another entry to watch is Rodney Bliss, who has been one of the better golfers around this sector.

This would have been a kick-in for Johnny Goodman 10 or 12 years ago. Or for Chick Evans. Johnny Fischer is another star amateur who can still play fine golf. But he gets few shots at the competitive side.

This is strictly an amateur matter, for the greater part. It is the main roulette wheel of sport. The only weak side is that being the best amateur today means less than nothing where the pros are concerned. Being an amateur championship this is probably the way it should be—strictly an amateur test, which has nothing to do with ranking ability.

But it would be still more exciting to have a Ouimet, Bobby Jones, Von Elm, Travers, Sweetser or Lawson Little around for old times' sake—meaning amateurs who gave the pros sleepless nights in place of a tired yawn.

Whirlaway 1-10 Choice To Take $40,000 Event

CHICAGO, Aug. 22.—(AP)—Whirlaway has a chance tomorrow to take the sting out of his greatest failure—his flop in the Arlington classic a month ago.

The uncrowned 3-year-old champion will go to the post in the $40,000 added American Derby at Washington Park probably at odds of 1 to 10, and only a dazzling upset could prevent a victory over as cheap a field as has contested one of the sport's oldest feature races.

Probably no more than four horses will oppose Whirlaway, although six were named tonight to start. The four which probably will face the "Cannon-Ball" are Walmac Farm's Bushwhacker, David Strauss' Daily Trouble, John Marsch's To-a-Tee, and Clarence Davidson's Delray. The doubtful starters are Valdina Dude and Happy Pilot.

Although he finished second to Attention in the Arlington classic upset, Whirlaway managed to beat Bushwhacker by six lengths, Daily Trouble by nine and a half, and To-a-Tee by fourteen and a half.

Bushwhacker is the only horse in the field which figures, in opinion of experts, to give Whirlaway any kind of competition. He is trained by Howard Wells, Lexington, Ky., rated as one of the shrewdest in the sport. Wells figures this is the season of the year when some of the 3-year-olds of early promise have begun to wilt, and those with sturdier qualities are showing real merit. He maintains Bushwhacker is up to the point of running a mile and a quarter at blazing speed and the distance won't bother him.

The Army IN GEORGIA

"Say, we don't go along with this pickup message, too, do we?"

The golden circlet of the wedding ring or the golden bar of a second lieutenant—they were what Staff Sergeant Ramond J. Pettine, of Camp Wheeler, had to choose between.

Sergeant Pettine could either be married or enter the 10-week officers' training course with a commission in view at the end. He chose the more romantic of the two and left the post this week for Providence, R. I., where he will be married.

Two other enlisted men in the camp classification office who have been offered the chance to become commissioned officers, specializing in classification, are Technical Sergeant James P. Thompson, of the Regular Army and First Class Private Sidney Albert, a selectee from Syracuse, New York.

AUGUSTA CAMP MAY BE NAMED WALKER

Waycross Rushes Red Cross Work

Special to THE CONSTITUTION.

WAYCROSS, Ga., Aug. 22.—The hot weather is no obstacle to Red Cross production volunteers of the Waycross chapter. As fast as one shipment of garments leaves the Waycross production room, another is in the making, and the corps of volunteers works cheerfully on, regardless of the mid-August heat wave.

A shipment of 430 garments was made to the Red Cross production center in Jersey City yesterday, to be forwarded immediately to England for civilian relief work. It had been but two weeks since a previous shipment was made. Yesterday's quota was the heaviest of the summer.

Mrs. T. S. Linton, production chairman, today commended the volunteer workers for the quality of their handiwork, commenting that "the garmen were beautifully made—just as painstakingly as though they were to be used in their own homes."

Minister Receives Rank of Captain

Special to THE CONSTITUTION.

DONALSONVILLE, Ga., Aug. 22.—The Rev. E. Banard Brooks, former pastor of the First Baptist church of Donalsonville, who was called in February to Ft. Barancas, Fla., to serve as chaplain, has been promoted to the rank of captain by the War Department.

Captain Brooks was a member of the Officers' Reserve Corps and through his efforts the first chapel has been built at the fort to be used exclusively for public worship by all denominations.

Japan Eases Monetary Restrictions on Aliens

TOKYO, Aug. 22.—(AP)—The Japanese government tonight eased monetary restrictions on foreigners resulting from reciprocal Japanese-British-American freezing measure, and permitted foreigners to draw 1,000 yen (about $235) monthly from bank accounts for living expenses. Previously only 500 yen a month could be withdrawn.

However, the new order covers only accounts in Japanese or other oriental banks.

Soldiers in Games To Use Telemobile

Southern Bell Telephone and Telegraph Company announced yesterday that a mobile unit, known as the Telemobile, built in Atlanta to serve soldiers in the field, was in use at Lake Charles, Louisiana.

R. N. Pfaff, Atlanta district manager, said that it is often difficult for soldiers on maneuvers to get to a telephone, so the telephone is being taken to the soldiers.

According to officials the telemobile was designed to fill the need for more communication facilities where additional service is desired during such important events as war maneuvers and contains five telephones for soldiers' use and one line for an attendant who is on duty to give personal service.

Increase Seen in U. S. Dried Egg Production

WASHINGTON, Aug. 22.—(AP)—A proposed increase in American dried egg production from the present level of about 12,000,000 pounds annually to a capacity "well in excess of 100,000,000 pounds" was announced today by defense officials.

The Office of Production Management said that the program was necessary to meet British requirements under the lend-lease program of about 100,000,000 pounds of dried eggs a year. American requirements, including needs of the Army and Navy, are estimated at about 14,000,000 pounds for the next 12 months.

Defense Unit Meets At Donalsonville

Special to THE CONSTITUTION.

DONALSONVILLE, Ga., Aug. 22.—The state Defense Corps met here this week for its regular drill. The unit has been well organized, rifles have been requisitioned and uniforms will soon be acquired.

Organization of an air warning service is being formed in those sections where telephones are available, and as soon as plans are completed they will be turned over to the Army for further instruction and direction. A practice maneuver for this branch of the civilian program is planned for September, when all planes seen in the Georgia skies during a 48-hour period will be reported.

Adna Chaffee, Armored Force Leader, Is Dead

Major General Succumbs in Boston, Victim of Breakdown.

BOSTON, Aug. 22.—(AP)—Major General Adna R. Chaffee, 57, the first commander of the Army's new armored force, died today at the Massachusetts General hospital after suffering a physical breakdown during an intense drive to build up and organize the special mechanized defense units.

A statement by the War Department said that the officer, whose fatal illness set in last winter after he had returned to work following a previous siege of pneumonia, had "sacrificed himself in the making of the armored force."

Once described as "one of the great Army men," the slight, wiry Chaffee received, even as he lay in his final illness, citations from the national government for his work in fathering the new branch of the Army.

Shortly before his death, the senate confirmed his nomination by President Roosevelt for permanent appointment as a major general, a rank he previously held temporarily. A short time before that, he was presented an oak-leaf cluster citation to go with the distinguished service medal he won in the World War.

Chaffee, one of the thinnest officers in the Army underwent an operation at Walter Reed hospital in Washington last winter.

His associates said it was will power and grim enthusiasm which enabled him—a cavalryman for the first quarter century of his Army service—to adjust himself to the task of gaining maximum efficiency in a field of combustion engines and the steel steeds of the armored units.

Chaffee was married in 1908 to the former Ethel Warren Huff, of Atlanta, Ga. They had one child, Adna R. Chaffee III, who became an executive with a large mercantile establishment.

EDUARDO CHIBAS.

HAVANA, Aug. 22.—(AP)—Eduardo J. Chivas, 72, noted Cuban engineer whose maps helped U. S. forces capture San Juan hill in the Spanish-American War, died today. A graduate of Renssalaer Polytechnic Institute, Troy, N. Y., Chibas achieved prominence as a railway, irrigation and mining engineer in Cuba, Panama, Colombia, Venezuela and other American nations, and was Cuban minister of public works in 1933.

Observation Squadron Here Given Orders

128th Will Be Inducted Into Service on September 15.

The War Department yesterday ordered the 128th National Guard Observation Squadron of Georgia, along with the 123rd of Oregon and the 124th of Iowa, into federal service September 15.

Major George G. Finch, commanding officer of the 128th, said his unit would be inducted at Atlanta, move to temporary quarters at Lawson Field, Fort Benning, and then go to its permanent station at Camp Forrest, Tennessee, about December 1.

Each of the units has an authorized strength of 31 officers and 116 enlisted men. However, Major Finch said the 128th would report with its full quota of enlisted men, but would have only 20 officers.

The order leaves only three National Guard observation squadrons out of active service. Those units for which induction dates will be set later are 122d, New Orleans; 125th, Tulsa, Okla., and 127th, Wichita, Kan.

President Roosevelt authorized mobilization of the three units named in the order last May after they received federal recognition earlier in the year.

NEW YORK, Aug. 22.—(AP)—Bidding props were present for an assortment of favorites in today's stock market, but the general run of leaders struggled unsuccessfully to attract even modest support.

While weakness was a rarity in most departments, declines of fractions predominated at the close and numerous issues were unchanged. Definite trends were lacking at the start. A few strong spots, mainly among senior stocks, cropped up in the final hour.

Dealings were slack throughout, but in a way this was comforting to bullish forces. Transfers of 362,000 shares were the smallest for a full session since July 1 and compared with 388,590 yesterday. The Associated Press average of 60 issues ended at 43.1, its closing level of Thursday.

As in previous sessions, fairly cheerful business items aided a number of shares. Merchandising groups especially were helped by estimates of continued heavy retail spending. The drastic curtailment order for 1942 model automotive production stalled the motors.

Start of the usual end-of-week lightening of commitments as a protection against untoward developments in the international situation served as a buying barrier, brokers said.

In a narrow curb slightly better prices were posted for Creole Petroleum, Bell Aircraft and America Gas & Electric. Down a bit were Aluminum Company of America, International Petroleum and American Cyanamid.

Gains, Losses About Divided On Bond List

NEW YORK, Aug. 22.—(AP)—Price changes in the main bond list again were mostly in fractions and the trend leaned slightly lower today. A few rails and assorted specialties moved up 1 to 2 points.

Volume fell back to $5,714,100, par value, from $7,404,600 on Thursday. The Associated Press average of 20 rails lost .3 of a point and the 10 foreign issues yielded .4 of a point after Thursday's drop of .5. Weakness in Belgian issues were mainly responsible on both days. Other groups in the index were about stationary.

United States governments closed on the Stock Exchange 12-32 of a point higher to 5-32 lower. A similar trend prevailed over the counter.

Belgium 6s of '55 dropped 3 3-4 points to 77 1-4 but the 6s of '49 picked up 4 at 82. Uruguay 4 1-4s and Sao Paulo stamped 7s were among others up a point or so.

Domestic Sugar Futures Trading To Be Resumed

NEW YORK, Aug. 22.—(AP)—The New York Coffee and Sugar Exchange announced today that trading in domestic sugar futures, suspended since a federal price ceiling of 3.50 cents a pound was set, would be resumed next Monday.

Transactions were halted August 14, just 48 hours after Price Administrator Leon Henderson announced the maximum "to protect the American public from rampant speculation in sugar which has been pushing prices far above levels justified by large supplies in hand."

At the time, domestic contracts—covering sugar for consumption in the United States—were selling about 1-3 of a cent a pound above the ceiling price.

AVERAGE PRICE.

NEW ORLEANS, Aug. 22.—(AP)—The average price of middling 15-16-inch cotton today at 10 designated southern spot markets was 5 points higher at 16.11 cents a pound; average for the past 30 market days, 16.00; middling 7-8-inch average 15.90.

NEW YORK, Aug. 22.—(AP)—Cotton futures today extended the recent performance of one day up and the next day down. Final prices were up 6 to 11 points, but earlier the list had shown gains of 14 to 16 points.

The drop from the high levels was attributed partly to bearish sentiment generated by criticism by the head of the American Farm Bureau Federation of the cotton-wheat freezing bill.

Selling pressure was kept within bounds by further reports of weevil infestation in southeastern areas and forecasts of unfavorable weather over the entire belt.

Exports Thursday, 1,000 bales; season so far, 36,336 bales. Port receipts 11,249 bales; port stocks, 3,129,994 bales.

PROFIT-TAKING ERASES EARLY COTTON GAINS

NEW ORLEANS, Aug. 22.—(AP)—Profit-taking from the long side erased most of the early gains in cotton futures here today. Closing prices were steady, 1 to 4 points net higher.

CHICAGO, Aug. 22.—(AP)—Wheat prices tried to rally today, deriving most strength from gains of other commodities such as oats, soybeans, lard, cottonseed oil and cotton, but the market lacked sufficient vigor to maintain gains of about a cent.

At highs of $1.13¼ for September delivery, $1.17 for December and $1.20 for May, which were within fractions of the four-year peaks established last week, the wheat market encountered profit-taking and hedging sales which wiped out most of the laborious gains registered earlier.

Wheat closed unchanged to ⅝ cent higher compared with yesterday. Corn ⅛c off to ¼c up. Oats ⅞-1c higher. Rye, ⅛-⅜c up. Soybeans 1¾-2⅜c higher and lard 23-25c higher.

Some mill buying was reported in the wheat pit but volume was not large.

WE ARE convinced we are the most liberal loan company in Atlanta. You know, however, all finance and loan companies are going to be restricted by the government. How long these appraisals will be allowed we do not know—

3-Day Strike Settled At Rushton Plant Here

The three-day strike at the Rushton plant, 578 Bankhead avenue, was settled yesterday and 250 employes were back at work, company and labor spokesmen announced.

Albert Gossett, president of the Atlanta Federation of Trades, announced the company had signed a contract with the American Federation of Labor.

The strike was the outgrowth of a "fight" between the AFL and the CIO employes for the right to serve as bargaining agents, company officials said.

Jury Is Dismissed In 2d Davis Trial

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 22.—(AP) A federal jury reported today it was unable to agree on a verdict at the second trial of retired United States Circuit Judge J. Warren Davis and Morgan S. Kaufman, former bankruptcy referee, on charges of selling justice in the bankruptcy litigation involving William Fox, one-time movie magnate. Their first trial also ended in jury disagreement.

Judge Hugh D. McClellan, of Boston, specially assigned to the trial, immediately dismissed the jury of nine men and three women.

Walter H. Gahagan, special assistant to the attorney general, who directed the prosecution, said after the jury reported that he would seek a third trial for the 74-year-old jurist and Kaufman, a Scranton (Pa.) attorney. He added he would confer first with Department of Justice officials in Washington.

Gadsden Strike Ended in Less Than 12 Hours

Wage Adjustment Given 35 Per Cent of 4,500 Workers, Union Says.

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

A swift agreement between the CIO Steel Workers' Organizing Committee and Republic Steel Corporation yesterday ended a strike at the company steel mills in Gadsden, Ala., less than 12 hours after it was called.

A. G. Delany, assistant district manager for the company, declined comment on terms of the agreement, but a union spokesman announced the SWOC had been granted numerous concessions.

William Dunn, district representative of the SWOC, said the agreement provided "wage adjustments" for an estimated 35 per cent of the plant's 4,500 employes, a union shop clause and the check-off system for union dues collection.

He said wage adjustments included in the agreement "to bring the wages here to the levels of those paid in Birmingham steel mills" would range from $1 per working day to as much as $10 per day for a few of the more highly skilled workers.

Meanwhile, walkouts were threatened at seven Great Lakes shipyards.

As these new labor disputes developed, involving threats of delay to defense contracts, the situation with respect to the strike-bound Kearny (N. J.) shipyards and in Detroit's transportation tie-up apparently remained unchanged.

(Mayor Edward Jeffries offered to sign an exclusive bargaining contract with the majority union in the city's transportation system to break a three-day strike by AFL Transit Workers, the United Press reported from Detroit.)

L. H. Korndorff, president of the Federal Shipbuilding & Drydock Company, left for New York City after a fruitless conference at Washington with labor representatives on the Kearny strike, which is holding up work on $493,000,000 of naval and merchant ship contracts. There were reports in the capital, entirely without confirmation, that he would confer with directors of his firm on possible management concessions.

Meantime, President Roosevelt indicated he held hopes that management and labor would yet settle their differences.

Steel Workers' Organizing Committee (CIO) strikers at the Pullman Standard Car Manufacturing Company plant at Bessemer, Ala., postponed until today a vote on a National Defense Mediation Board request that they return to work pending negotiations on their demands.

W. H. Crawford, president of the Birmingham Industrial Council (CIO), said the strikers would not return to work until the status of two American Federation of Labor unions was clarified. He contended the AFL unions of machinists and electricians had appeared at the plant after the strike was called August 11, and were "injected into the picture by company machinations."

The SWOC was demanding reinstatement of several workers and a contract with the plant.

Athens Building Is Sold by State

The old Lumpkin Law School building, located directly across the street from the University of Georgia, in Athens, was sold yesterday at public auction to G. L. Pennington, of Macon, for $21,100. The building was sold by a subcommittee of the Board of Regents.

The property, located on the corner of Broad street, and the new Macon highway, which is now under construction, will probably become the site of a new and modern hotel, although the purchaser did not reveal his plans.

The subcommittee of the Board of Regents is composed of Ben Jackson, chairman; W. S. Morris, Dr. Joe Jenkins and Dr. S. V. Sanford. They were appointed at a recent meeting of the board, which authorized them to dispose of the property.

Big Offensive In Arkansas Exercises Ends

Men in Field Get Rest While Officers Map Next Move.

WITH THE SECOND ARMY IN ARKANSAS, Aug. 22.—(AP)—The grand offensive of the Seventh Army Corps of fabled Blue Almat against the Red Kotmk invasion out of Oklahoma came to an end today.

Overwhelming Red reinforcements bearing down on southwest Arkansas battered the center of the Blue Army with mechanized units and began a great pincers movement around both north and south flanks of the outnumbered Blues.

The Reds, actually represented only by a token force made up of the 107th Ohio Cavalry, were presumed for purpose of the maneuver problem to have thrown eight divisions into the engagement against Almat's defenders, made up of the 27th (New York), the 33rd (Illinois) and 35th (Missouri, Kansas and Nebraska) divisions and the 75th Field Artillery Brigade of Tennessee.

When "time out" was called this afternoon, the Almatians were in a tight spot and Major General Robert C. Richardson Jr., commanding the Seventh Corps, ordered a "command post exercise" for tomorrow, in which it will be up to the individual commands to determine how the Blues can best be extricated from their predicament. Thus men in the field will have a rest while paper work for their future movement is being completed.

Lieutenant General Ben Lear, Second Army commander, today commended the 84th Ordnance Company, of Erie, Pa., now operating out of Curtis, Ark., for excellent morale and performance.

Nazi Losses At 2 Million, Russia Says

Red Casualties Only 700,000, Moscow Contends.

MOSCOW, Saturday, Aug. 23.—(AP)—Two months of war on Soviet Russia has cost the German army more than 2,000,000 killed and wounded, compared to 700,000 Soviet casualties, and the roads to Moscow, Leningrad and Kiev still are blocked by the Red army, the Russians announced today.

A German claim of 5,000,000 Soviet casualties and other "fantastic figures" on the losses of Soviet equipment were ridiculed by an official communique as "stupid lies that not a single man bearing his head on his shoulders will believe."

The Russians gave this breakdown of their 700,000 losses:

Killed, 150,000.
Wounded, 440,000.
Missing, 110,000.

Losses in material were listed thus:

	German.	Russian.
Tanks	8,000	5,500
Guns	10,000	7,500
Planes	7,200	4,500

Congressman Hits Sentence Of Habinyak

Army Charges Trainee Refused To Work for $21 a Month.

FORT BRAGG, N. C., Aug. 22. (AP)—A congressman vehemently denounced today the 10-year, nine-month sentence meted Private John Habinyak for insubordination, and the Army released a court-martial digest quoting the New York trainee as saying he formerly earned $10 a day and would not work for $21 a month.

Representative Young, Democrat, Ohio, urged Secretary of War Stimson to reverse the military verdict which also carried dishonorable discharge for Habinyak, inducted into the service June 23. The selectee had worked as a coal miner at Central City, Pa.

Young pointed out the 26-year-old soldier was charged with disobeying orders of Lieutenant Leo J. Kraus to clean a mess kit, clean a floor, and to pick up pieces of broken concrete and added "doubtless Lieutenant Leo J. Kraus is a fresh, officious officer who is not worth his salt in private life."

Stimson Consulted.

The congressman also informed Colonel Charles B. Elliott, post commander who ordered Habinyak's discharge, he was urging Stimson to "give immediate consideration to your removal from command." He added "I am wondering what sentence you mete out to soldiers who really commit crimes."

Major S. E. Murrell, post judge advocate, said that except for Habinyak's attitude, the five offenses upon which he was convicted would have been considered minor, but that he continually refused to obey orders.

Habinyak, sentenced to serve his time in Atlanta Federal Penitentiary, was not allowed to talk to newspapermen today. Major Murrell said the time and date of his departure for Atlanta would not be announced.

Reviews of Verdict.

In Washington, where the War Department declined to comment on the case, it was learned that such verdicts are subject to a series of reviews before sentence can be executed. First, the case is reviewed by the officer convening the court, then the board of review of the judge advocate general's department, the judge advocate general himself, secretary of war, and the President.

Representative Young wrote Stimson that if the punishment meted Habinyak "is a sample of the judgment of Colonel Charles B. Elliott, God help the regiment if this nation becomes involved in war."

In New York, Mrs. Frances Santos, superintendent of the rooming house where Habinyak lived for five years, said: "Why, he was the quietest fellow I ever had here. He even kept his radio turned low. And neat—he was as neat as a pin."

ITU Rejects Move For Lost-Time Pay

VANCOUVER, B. C., Aug. 22.—(AP)—Delegates to the International Typographical Union convention rejected today a resolution urging pay at union scales for all time lost because of injuries suffered while at work.

The convention also refused to consider a proposal to allow members priority standing on returning from active service in defense work. There would be endless controversy as to what constitutes defense work, the laws committee reported.

A resolution stated "There is a determined movement on foot for newspapers or chains of newspapers to buy out or freeze out newspapers not so fortunate," and it was recommended that "subordinate unions, in case of merger, consolidation or suspension, must incorporate in contracts a provision for severance pay."

A resolution submitted by Mailers' unions in Chicago, Des Moines, Evansville, Atlanta, Tacoma, Seattle, Indianapolis and Cincinnati urged they be accorded "the democratic privilege of voting as to whether they desire to remain affiliated with the I. T. U."
